Propositions On Ballot Reviewed

This is the first of a series of articles on the various propositions to appear on the Nov. 8 election ballot. It deals with No. 25, the proposed Retirement Life Payment Act, better known as the $30 every Thursday pension plan.

By United Press—The $30 every Thursday pension proposal, most far-reaching of any pension plan to be suggested since old age security legislation assumed a commanding position in political affairs, is perhaps the most widely discussed topic in California politics.

The plan has been denounced as a visionary scheme which would bring to California financial ruin. It has been praised as a forthright response to the demand that "something must be done" to meet problems of over-production and under-consumption. Its backers present the plan as "Ham and Eggs for Californians."

Briefly, the $30 every Thursday proposition advocates that a pension be paid to every person over 50 years of age who is neither employed nor an employer.

Fortcoming for Life It is proposed that the state finance the plan by issuing each Thursday thirty $1 retirement compensation warrants, non-interest bearing, negotiable and transferable without endorsement, to every qualified citizen over 50 years of age who is neither employed nor an employer.

Applicants would be required to make sworn statements as to age, lack of employment, legal residence in California for one year, or five years if residence is established after enactment of the plan.

Its backers have declared the "red tape" connected with the idea does not go beyond this stage. A successful applicant would be given a letter of credit and an identification and payment record card to be presented each Thursday thereafter. Provided applicants observed qualifications, the "super substitute for money" would then be forth coming for life.

Accepted for Taxes The initiative provides for appointment of a state retirement life payments administrator from three named persons, appointee to serve until successor is elected in 1940 for four years. Under terms of the act the state is required to issue the compensation warrants and redemption stamps to be affixed thereon.

"This constitutional amendment pretends to provide $30 a week for qualified individuals. It makes no such provision. At most, beneficiaries of its terms would receive warrants of an arbitrarily designated amount, but subject to an obligation of redemption in cash or by check of the amount of the warrants."

"These warrants could not circulate in private business transactions. If the warrants were to be usable it would be necessary for this amount (780,000,000) worth of warrants distributed to an estimated 500,000 persons after one year to change hands each week, requiring transactions of more than $40,000,000,000 a year."

"The total income of the people of the United States is only $80,000,000,000 a year. Business transactions in this state could not, under any conditions, provide a volume sufficient to support circulation even of a small fraction of the warrants which would be issued. Inability of the warrants to circulate would destroy their assessed value since no one could afford to hold them. The stamp charges (two percent a week) would be prohibitive."

(The next article, second in the series, will discuss proposition 26, the so-called Single Tax proposal.)

Each Thursday, for 52 weeks, a 2-cent redemption stamp would have to be affixed on each warrant to maintain its potential value. The theory underlying the stamp attachments is that at the end of a year there would be 52 two-cent stamps on the back of each warrant, or $1.04. Holder of the warrant would present it to the state and receive $1.00 in cash. The extra four cents would be retained by the state to cover administrative expenses.

Warrants would have to be accepted by tax collecting agencies of political subdivisions in payment of taxes, and the act further provided that 50 percent of state, city, county or other political subdivision employee salaries must be paid in the scrip.

Held a Direct Tax Although the plan's promoters declare merchants in all classes of trade will accept the paper, the California state chamber of commerce has asserted the warrants could not be deposited in banks or credited to accounts. No person, firm or employee in private industry can be compelled to accept such "printing press warrants in place of money."

Another apparent contradiction is the thesis that the plan is not an idea involving new taxation. The state must issue the stamps worth 2 cents, and sell them for cash. In effect, in the opinion of impartial critics, the stamps represent a direct tax.

presented by the petition campaign committee, arguments in favor of the plan include in part: "Warrants will be evenly distributed to five hundred thousand people weekly. They will increase business for every merchant who cooperates in the plan. It contemplates the widest spread of buying ever seen."

"It involves no tax or cost to taxpayers now or later. The two-cent stamp attached weekly is a simple method disposing of each warrant by retirement in the same manner an automobile or a home is paid for in weekly or monthly payments."

Opponents have presented the following views for consideration of the voters:

"This constitutional amendment pretends to provide $30 a week for qualified individuals. It makes no such provision. At most, beneficiaries of its terms would receive warrants of an arbitrarily designated amount, but subject to an obligation of redemption in cash or by check of the amount of the warrants."

"These warrants could not circulate in private business transactions. If the warrants were to be usable it would be necessary for this amount (780,000,000) worth of warrants distributed to an estimated 500,000 persons after one year to change hands each week, requiring transactions of more than $40,000,000,000 a year."

"The total income of the people of the United States is only $80,000,000,000 a year. Business transactions in this state could not, under any conditions, provide a volume sufficient to support circulation even of a small fraction of the warrants which would be issued. Inability of the warrants to circulate would destroy their assessed value since no one could afford to hold them. The stamp charges (two percent a week) would be prohibitive."

(The next article, second in the series, will discuss proposition 26, the so-called Single Tax proposal.)

Dear Grover: My congratulations on your special edition, "Torrance-On-Air." It was certainly a fine one for which you and your staff are deserving of a great deal of credit. It is good to see a community like Torrance come along so fast. No doubt the reason for this is because it has a fine, aggressive newspaper like The Herald. With kind personal regards, I am,

Around Hollywood Film Lots

HOLLYWOOD (U.P.)—Veteran film director John M. Stahl, after 25 years of picture-making, has only one regret—that he has not been able to direct enough controversial pictures.

"My ambition," he said, "is to make a picture which, if shown to 100 people, would be enthusiastically applauded by 50, and as violently denounced by the other 50."

"Such pictures might not only be artistic successes, but might also be box office hits as well. I have long believed that the industry is making a grave mistake in trying to produce pictures that will please everyone. For what that really amounts to is trying to displease no one. And by displease no one, you please no one."

No Warning Allowed The grey-haired, soft spoken director feels that no progress can be made in the film industry until the bonds of self-imposed censorship are lifted. Stahl emphasized he was not referring to moral restrictions, but to taboos which make it impossible for a picture to deal with a moral issue.

"We are living in a period of violent controversy," he continued. "We find our own ideal of democracy beset by the adherents of alien theories—many of whom are not even citizens of the country."

"Yet we are unable to make a picture designed to warn the people against the dangers that threaten our American institutions, whether they be rightism or leftism. Why?"

Fear Foreign Suppression "Because such a picture would be barred from certain foreign markets. Because its suppression would be sought even in this country by organizations motivated by subversive designs."

"And the American picture industry submits to this condition despite the fact that foreign governments that would ban such pictures, have turned their own backs on them."

County Fair Expects Huge Attendance

With all previous marks beaten, Los Angeles County Fair officials at Pomona were preparing for the largest week-end attendance in its history.

While it is near the end of the 17-day show, all displays including the 20,000 square feet of flowers, decorating the center of the agricultural building, the thousands of specimens of fruits and vegetables are just as fresh as the day the fair opened for they have been replenished and freshened.

New attractions and new sights are on every hand and with all of the exposition's huge facilities for accommodating the thousands of fair visitors, ready to throw into action, officials predict that the closing days will be definitely red-letter.
