

Palos Verdes C.C. Fights City Move

The Palos Verdes Chamber of Commerce this week served notice on the board of supervisors that it will fight to prevent incorporation of the Palos Verdes Estates into a sixth-class city.

In a letter to the county board, Oscar L. Willett, president of the chamber, said his organization has gone on record opposing incorporation and that it is beginning circulation of petitions against calling of an election in the district for this purpose.

In the meantime, the incorporation move has proceeded to the point where an official map of the proposed city has been prepared by County Surveyor Alfred Jones and the board of supervisors is preparing to set a date for a public hearing on the matter. Willett claims the petition for incorporation contains errors.

The county counsel's office reports that the papers are all in order and that the matter will come before the board of supervisors on Tuesday, Aug. 29.

Supervisor Hauge said, "This is the first attempt at incorporation in the county of Los Angeles under the 1933 amended law of municipal corporations in the political code. The procedure outlined in the statute leaves no discriminatory power with the board of supervisors other than the setting of the boundaries."

The procedure outlined by the law is the filing of petitions, maps, papers, etc., and after approval by the county surveyor and county counsel, the board of supervisors is required to set a date for hearing which then is published and all protestants may appear. If in the discretion of the board there is reason for excluding certain parcels, they may set the boundary line to exclude them. The board is then required to call an election and post the notices of same in public places in the area which is proposed to be incorporated. The result of the election determines whether or not the area becomes an incorporated sixth-class city.

CITY LIES FOUR-SQUARE by Edith Pargeter: No more strange and haunting love story has been written since Berkeley Square than this tale of two ethereal lovers, long dead, who return to affect those living in the ancient house where they had known grief and ecstasy.

This is a modern ghost story with a special quality all its own, full of movement and color, richness and beauty evoked from days of long ago. The story concerns young Dr. Julian Sears and the old attractive house which he purchased for his bride-to-be. No one had lived in it since the last owner had left the country and Julian discovered why the night he moved in.

The Gulf between the living and ghost was bridged and Julian and his fiancée found themselves entangled in the affairs of two other young lovers. The climax is heart stirring and its wistful and lovely imagination will be remembered long after the last leaf is turned.

THEY WANTED TO LIVE by Cecil Roberts: This is the story of a few exciting months in the life of Jim Brown, the handsome young porter in "Victoria Four Thirty." Suddenly enriched by sweepstake, he marries his sweetheart and takes his bride to the Continent for the honeymoon of his dreams. These babes in the woods are immediately involved in a series of adventures which provide entertainment.

AN AMERICAN MUSICIAN'S STORY by Olga Samoroff Stowkowski: This seems to be the season for reminiscences by American musicians, as the reading public has greatly enjoyed volumes by Sidney Homer, Geraldine Farrar, Madam Chara Chomov Gabrilovitch. This author, a famous concert pianist, has been not only interested in developing her own career but devoted to the cause of musical education and anxious to help audiences to appreciate what is best in music.

After retiring from concert stage Madam Stowkowski became interested in instruction and the many lectures she has given already have had a profound effect in educating audiences. She develops in this volume the change that has grown upon American musical life; the development of great orchestras; popular summer concerts, radio concerts and improvement in educational opportunities which no longer make necessary the "finishing" in Europe which used to be customary.

LORDS OF THE PRESS by George Selde: The author gives in this volume his usual vivid account of personalities and activities of owners, reporters and columnists of leading American newspapers. Among other things

Mrs. Porter was met on the dock at San Pedro by her mother, who lives in Long Beach, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Caroline William of 1012 Cedar Street. She intends to remain in this country and may make her home in Long Beach. The late Mr. Porter was employed in a steel mill in India.

Boy, 7, Amazes Professor PROVIDENCE, R. I. (U.P.) Prof. Charles H. Smiley, nationally known for his astronomical work at Brown University, was "pegged at a recent 'open house' to find a young visitor who knew all the planets and had a stronger conviction as to the impossibility of life on Mars.

Discussed fearlessly are industrial relations, censorship, distortion and suppression of the news. According to the New Republic: "Lords of the Press" is the most important book of the year for those who work on daily papers as well as for those who read with discrimination. Most will agree that it is a fair estimate."

AUTOBIOGRAPHY WITHOUT LETTERS by Wm. Leven Phelps: America's most beloved man of letters tells his life story with his usual charm. As teacher for many years at Yale, lecturer and writer, he is known to millions of readers. Intertwined with his own story are portraits together with hitherto unpublished letters of Conrad, Hardy, Galsworthy, Walpole and many others. This will be one of the most eagerly read and thoroughly enjoyed books of the year.

Car Thieves Seen Stripping Machine Here

Seen by a pumper at the C. C. M. O., just as they were completing their work, two car thieves had fled after stripping their prey of all removable accessories by the time police arrived late Monday night. However, the license number of the car used by the thief-strippers was obtained by the C. C. M. O. worker and given police.

The car they were working on had been stolen from in front of a Redondo theatre shortly before the men were seen here. Torrance police had the stripped machine towed to a local garage where it was claimed by the owner, a Los Angeles resident. The license number clue was turned over to Redondo police for further investigation because the theft occurred in that city.

3 Cars Involved in Carson Crash

Three cars were damaged in a collision Sunday morning on Carson street east of Border avenue but none of the occupants were hurt, according to police.

Ellis Owen, 21815 Halldale avenue, driving west on Carson was involved in a collision with a machine, operated by John A. Kazel, Los Angeles, which was going east on Carson. The two cars struck a car driven by Oliver Harsh, Los Angeles, which was also going east at the time of the accident.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Uhlright, 1434 El Prado, have taken a cottage at Redondo Beach for the month.

Here's 411,000 miles of proof that YOU'D DO BETTER WITH FORD V-8 TRUCKS!

S. H. BACON'S own experience proved that a light, fast Ford V-8 truck can and will haul more materials in a day than a larger, slower truck—and keep operating costs at rock-bottom.

This truck was driven 411,000 miles and hauled more than 100,000 tons of sand and gravel. Its operating costs, Mr. Bacon believes, were lower than that of any other equipment he could have selected.

Let an "on-the-job" test show you the advantages of Ford V-8 stamina, speed, flexibility, economy. There are three engine sizes—60 h.p., 85 h.p. and the new 95 h.p. V-8 engine—six wheelbases and a wide variety of body types. See your Ford dealer today!
