

Only 3 Arrests During Frolic

Despite the large crowds that thronged the El Prado "way" during the Factory Frolic, police made only three arrests during the three-day celebration. Two of them were detention of juveniles, one being accused of intoxication and the other of having a can of beer in his possession.

Jack Emery, 54, of Gardena, was nabbed on Cravens avenue after he struck two parked cars on El Prado during an erratic drive early Sunday morning. He was charged with driving while intoxicated. Half of a $100 fine was suspended by Judge Lessing on condition he pays for the damages to machines he hit.

The two boys were turned over to their parents. Police are continuing their investigation of how they obtained the liquor. One was given a $25 suspended fine on condition he stays away from dances and places where liquor

FACTORY FROLIC PROVES SMASH HIT; RECORD CROWDS ATTEND EVERY ATTRACTION

are the portable dance floor, which cost $330 in material and labor, and fixtures used in displaying articles at the hobby and handicraft exhibits.

A MUST FOR 1940

Before the Frolic committee last night swung into the matter of receipts and disbursements it held a "post-mortem" on the climactic three days of their three months' work.

It was generally agreed that the Frolic had lived up to the expectations of all residents; that there were no serious upsets to carefully designed plans; that the entertainment schedule was closely followed and that Torrance MUST have its third annual celebration in 1940.

But someone other than Fay Parks will have to head the committee next year. He said that he felt he had done his share and that the job of directing a Frolic event should be a one-term affair. It was also agreed that the 1940 celebration should follow the same plan of organization as the 1938 and 1939 Frolics—continued to no particular organization or group but the product of all local associations and individual citizens, open to anyone in Torrance, by, for and with Torrance people.

Concessions Do Well

Every phase of the Frolic, with the exception of the open-air dances, was a financial success, the committee men and women reported. This year's attendance was variously estimated from 10,000 to 50,000, far larger than the first celebration. The dances failed to "make expenses" because those in charge of that part of the Frolic had not anticipated the jam around the platform that blocked many from joining in the festivities and thus reduced receipts at the ticket-stand.

Two of the outstanding features were the displays and entertainment in the Civic Auditorium and the Arts, Crafts, Hobby and Needlework show in the morning until they closed.

Every one of the concession stand operators reported excellent business during the three days. While none were willing to divulge their actual "take" it was learned that the children's ride attraction, including the ferris wheel, grossed nearly $700, of which the Factory Frolic committee which sponsored the mobile features, received 10 percent.

Excellent Fashion Show

The competitive features, horseshoe pitching, children's pet parade, jitterbug dance, bicycle races and the Arts and Crafts show, drew large entries. The winners of all these events are listed on Page 1-B of this edition.

Concerts of the Torrance Municipal band of 30 pieces and the Glendale Kiwanis boys' band and their appearance in Saturday's parade did much to add to the spirit of the Frolic. Dance revues and vaudeville acts arranged by Betty Dalton Thomas and Claire Thomas Thursday night and the Garri-Brandt Dancing school Friday evening in the Auditorium attracted considerable interest and much applause.

Presented by the Spinners club, the Fashion Show in the Auditorium Saturday night proved to be an excellent display. The models, members of the sponsoring club and a group of local youngsters, displayed the latest styles obtained from J. C. Penney Company, J. J. Newberry store, Ellwoods and Adams Dress Shop. Marion Sears was chairman in charge of the arrangements for the show and her sister, Jean, served as a capable announcer, giving details of the costumes as they were worn about the stage by the attractive models.

Jitterbugs Draw Crowds

Two events which drew big throngs around the open-air platform were the hobby horse races and the midget auto races. The first proved to be most unpredictable mounts who tossed their riders with frequency and ease. The midget cars spun around the floor at speeds up to 60 miles an hour and sounded like a swarm of angry hornets.

Nearly 30 youngsters participated in the pet parade Friday afternoon, many of them in costume and all eager to show off their animals—one little girl even had her pet turtles in a glass jar. The jitterbugs, several hundred strong, cavorted to Don Briggs' music each night, thus furnishing an attraction by themselves. Their gyrations were watched by many hundred more.

Following the bike races for boys from 10 to 19 years of age Saturday morning over a seven-mile course, a group of riders from the California Cycling club whizzed down Cravens avenue to show how the big races are run and won. Every afternoon found a loyal group of "barnyard golfers" tossing horseshoes in the vacant lot next to the central fire station.

Visit Phone Exchange

Led by the Torrance Municipal band and a high-stepping, pretty drum major, a parade wound thru the business district and was applauded by thousands Saturday afternoon. The procession was not as long as last year's nor did it have as many humorous entries but it was a splendid turnout for a city of this size.

An average of 500 people visited the Torrance telephone exchange daily during the Frolic to learn from courteous attendants what happens when patrons ring "central" and place a call. Chief interest of those who took advantage of the telephone company's second annual "open house" were the equipment which showed what a voice actually looks like and how one's voice sounds over the phone.

Mrs. O. V. Politzke, local manager, and other company officials were delighted at the attendance and evident interest of all visitors. The complete plant was on exhibit and there were a number of interesting phone displays to show the communication service in all its world-wide facilities.

Chairman Parks asked The Herald to extend the hearty thanks of the Frolic committee to the industrial plants, the merchants, the press, and everyone, including the thousands who patronized the Frolic, for their assistance and co-operation.

Huge Drain Plan Given Co. Board

Would Restrict Building

The proposed "official plan" provides flood control and drainage works extending from Imperial highway at the Los Angeles Municipal Airport to the Pacific. The initial relief plan provides for construction of a conduit under the Imperial highway from the airport to the intersection of Imperial highway and Doty avenue and from there to the ocean a ditch 36 to 45 feet in width with a water depth of seven to 10 feet.

In event this latter plan is adopted, the board of supervisors is urged to pass a resolution to restrict building operations in the Johnson Lake and Laguna Dominguez areas. This plan would not prevent inundation of these areas during flood periods, the report states. These areas would remain unsafe for residential development and the county engineers feared adoption of the plan might stimulate home construction in the section affected.

The joint report of Engineers Jones and Hedger was filed almost a year to the day after it was ordered by the board of supervisors. The board, acting on request of residents of the area, ordered the study made on Oct. 1, 1938.
