

STATE LEGION HEAD SPEAKS AT BANQUET

Pointing to the futility of America's entry in last world war, William Dunn, state commander of the American Legion, stressed the importance of staying out of Europe's troubles in a stirring talk before Edison Legion post No. 431 at its third annual banquet held in Torrance Civic Auditorium Saturday evening.

The state Legion chief was supported in this contention by other Legion state officials as well as L. I. Herrill, commander of the Edison post; Superior Court Judge Leroy Dawson and others who addressed the 220 guests at the gala dinner and show.

This was the third year the Edison Company war veterans had selected Torrance for their meeting place, and high praise was expressed for the hospitality of this city and the fine dinner served by the American Legion Auxiliary. Visitors came from throughout Southern California. C. C. Bartlett, district manager of the Southern California Edison Company at Redondo Beach, acted as toastmaster.
