

Alondra Park Tax Refund Plan May Win Group's Approval Tonight

RECORD CROWD DUE AT MASS MEETING

With a record attendance anticipated, tonight's mass meeting of the Alondra Park Taxpayers' Association in the Civic Auditorium should produce a definite commitment from that organization concerning adoption of the refunding plan as a prime method to obtain relief from the district's crushing tax burden.

Whether or not the refunding idea is approved by the association, the tax strike, launched last March, will continue, leaders of both sides in the controversy assert. Both favor continuing withholding assessments when paying current tax levies.

Altho the association through its executive committee has spurned the refunding plan entirely it is believed likely that the association's general membership will endorse that method tonight. This belief is based on reports from the refunding camp that owners of about 5,000 acres of the 9,376-acre Alondra Park Acquisition and Improvement (Mattoon Act) district have endorsed that method to obtain tax relief.

Starts at 8 O'clock

"We have more than a majority of the property owners represented on the petitions that we will present to the county board of supervisors in the near future," Secretary Pat MacDonnell of the Gardena Valley Chamber of Commerce, told The Herald Monday.

"At least 70 percent of the owners of property in North Torrance are in favor of refunding the district's debt," he continued. "We expect to have at least 80 percent of both property owners and acreage urging the refunding proceedings before we file the petitions with the county board."

Tonight's meeting, which is called for 8 o'clock, should produce the first complete arguments for and against the refunding plan that Alondra Parkers have heard in the years' long effort to lift the heavy tax burden that has barred development of the district.

Mayor William H. Tolson, president of the association, has stated that both sides will be allowed to present their arguments. Opposing the refunders are the members of the association's executive committee and others who favor continuing the tax strike without any steps to settle past tax obligations and attempt to scale down future assessments. Those favoring refunding, likewise endorse the tax strike as an auxiliary "pressure" to obtain relief.

Herald Want Ad Empties Cellar For a Profit!

Mrs. McElfresh, manager of the El Cajon Court, had a number of mattresses, rugs, a dining room set and odds and ends, lying around in the basements of her courts. She no longer needed them but the money would come in handy for other things, so she decided to sell them.

A want ad in The Torrance Herald costing 60 cents for two weeks quickly disposed of them—in fact, several people went away disappointed.

If you have any odds and ends, furniture, etc., why not use a 25c Herald Want Ad and sell to these disappointed people?

Just call Tor. 444 and ask for Miss Lee, who will gladly help you word an effective want ad.

Having hardly realized the death of his father, N. P. Nelson, 82, of Waupaca, Wisconsin, who was instantly killed in an automobile accident last week, and the death of his mother, Mrs. N. P. Stearns, 38, of the same city. Mrs. Stearns succumbed from injuries received in an accident.

Funeral arrangements are being completed this week, and will be held in Waupaca. It is uncertain whether Nelson will be able to leave his work to attend the services inasmuch as he and Mrs. Nelson took a leave of absence last May to visit his family in Wisconsin.

By WARREN BAYLEY
Just why it is not the policy of our government to honor its outstanding citizens while they are still alive is something I do not know. That such was the policy—I am positive.

Some eight years ago the citizens of Missouri together with many civic organizations thru-out the country endeavored to establish a national military park here at Laclede in honor of General Pershing, this being his home town. The general sentiment of the people as a whole was behind the idea but a bill to appropriate the necessary land was voted down in the upper house of Congress. Repeated inquiries brought only the information that it was against the government's policy.

Not to be thwarted, the state of Missouri recently purchased the ground, 1,800 acres, and named it Pershing State Park. As yet it is undeveloped but 200 C.C.C. boys will soon be on the job and in a couple of years the transformation will be complete.

"No More Wars"

While checking into the park business I dropped into the office of the Laclede newspaper, owned and operated by A. J. Caywood. Caywood is 75 years of age, has operated this one paper for 50 years come next May, has been a personal friend of the General since boyhood and possesses what is probably the most complete file of the General's accomplishments to be found in this country. In looking back through his files I ran across a couple of items that will stand repeating.

One was a statement made by the General at the age of 23 years, home from West Point on a visit, then a second lieutenant. He said to a friend, "I guess I will have to take up the study of law when I get through at Pershing Park Laclede, Mo.

West Point. There will be no more wars—war is a thing of the past."

The other was an incident that happened when Pershing was starting out as a young school teacher. This incident was partly responsible for his home town name of "Lucky" Jack Pershing.

Dude In Kid Gloves

It seems that a Doctor Spurgeon had written a letter of recommendation to Captain Henley, chairman of the Prairie Mound district school board. Pershing wanted to be a teacher of that school. When he started to drive out to Captain Henley's house, Dr. Spurgeon stopped him. "Better take off those kid gloves before you go in, John," advised Dr. Spurgeon. "It's warm and your hands won't get cold."

Pershing laughed but followed directions. Captain Henley scrutinized his letter of recommendation and asked some questions which Pershing answered satisfactorily.

"Well, young man," said Captain Henley, "you seem to be pretty well up in what a teacher should know, and this letter from Dr. Spurgeon is good. I reckon I'll appoint you—but you came mighty near losing out. But for one thing a young man from Brookfield who was here yesterday would have got the job. But, Mr. Pershing, the dude wore gloves—kid gloves! And in June! What do you think of that?"

Legion Dancers to Stalk Fowls Saturday Night

The Thanksgiving Turkey Dance sponsored by Torrance Post 170, American Legion, gives every indication of being a huge success, according to Ed Bird, chairman for the affair. This outstanding event of the holiday social season will be held at the Civic Auditorium next Saturday evening, Nov. 18.

According to Bird, a live turkey, duck or chicken will be given away following each dance in the program to the lucky holder of a ticket. However, the grand climax will be the giving of a huge turkey to the winners of a jitterbug contest in which at least one of the contestants must be over 40. Dances to please both young and old will be under the direction of Don Briggs and his 15-piece orchestra. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the local Legion Post or at the Auditorium Saturday night.

ROCKLAND, Me. (U.P.)—Chico, a chow dog who waited half her life for the return of her mistress, is dead at 17. From 1930, when her owner died at a local hospital, until 1935 Chico refused to enter any house—spending most of her time on the sidewalks or at the hospital.

Modern Styles Contribute to Revival of Needlecraft

Believe Itinerant Got Away With Lost $20 Bill

An old man who applied at a local market for something to eat Sunday morning is believed to have found and pocketed a $20 bill dropped in the store by Myrtle Swift of 714 Columbia Court.

She reported the loss to local police, reporting that she dropped the bill while paying for groceries. An officer detailed to investigate the loss interviewed the delicatessen manager who said he saw an old man who asked for something to eat a few minutes before, pick up something off the floor.

The store employee said he did not know what the man found. A search of the neighborhood failed to locate the man.

Lavender and old lace . . . Bustles and hoop skirts . . . What'd they make ya think of? The goodie olde days? The kay 90s? When grandma was a gal? Not on your life!

They spell 1940—and they're as modern as tomorrow. At least that's the opinion of Miss Viola Le Mar, needlework instructor at Torrance Evening school, whose class in dress-making, as they were made in grandmother's day, is gaining in popularity every day.

So large is the class becoming, according to Miss Le Mar, that soon it may be necessary to increase the working facilities of the group.

In addition to the renewed interest in a revival of the clothes of yesteryear, students are also showing a marked interest in smart new house and hostess coats, gay new spring outfits and dainty children's frocks. Miss Le Mar explained. One student is even learning the art of remodeling men's clothing into good-looking women's sport coats, jackets and skirts.

Classes, held from 7 to 9 o'clock each Monday and Wednesday night in Room 301 of the high school building, are open to the public, and there is no tuition or instruction charge.

Coordinators Changing Plan of Service Here

Three committee chairmen were named this week by Judge Robert Lessing, head of the Coordinating Council, to carry out the proposed re-organization of that group. They are Harry W. Slover, adjustment committee; Rev. Thomas R. Marshall, character building, and Charles R. Underwood, environment.

Sources of juvenile delinquency here are to be referred to the committee heads for study and action. Judge Lessing said in explaining the new duties of the group. Organizations comprising the adjustment committee include official community agencies such as police, health, social case work organizations and the schools.

The character building committee consists of reactior and youth group representatives, Boy and Girl Scout leaders. In the environment committee are the P. T. A. units, service clubs, churches and American Legion. Each committee will be assigned to study particular juvenile problems which come within the scope of its member organizations, Lessing said.

Builder Says Better Days Are Here in Business

Take Ed Neess's word for it—something is happening in the building business in Torrance. Neess, veteran contractor, declared this week that he has had more inquiries and has contracted for more home buildings during the past 10 days than at any time since he's been in Torrance.

"Either prospective home-owners have been assured by the defeat of the 30-Thursday pension plan that they won't have to bear an inequitable tax burden or else the approaching holidays, which mean a lot to a home-owner, have made them make up their minds to build," he said at his office, 1601 Gramercy avenue.
