MANY TURKEYS

Cold storage holdings of turkeys in the United States on Jan. 1 totalled 52,293,000 pounds, the heaviest in many years and more than double the amount held the preceding year, the federal-state market news service said today.

EXCEPTION

There are said to be 2,000,000 feeble-minded persons in the United States—exclusive of course, of automobile drivers.—Exchange.

HOW TO DANCE "PUT LITTLE FOOT"... Here, in one easy lesson, is how to learn "Put Your Little Foot There," new step adapted from century-old Mexican folk-dance by Vincent Lopez, and premiered on coast at San Francisco's Palace Hotel.

Left to right, Picture No. 1—hop on right foot, keeping left foot raised with the toe down. Picture No. 2—completion of hop. Right foot raised with weight on left and body slightly forward. Third direction, not illustrated: bring right foot forward in back of left, this being done with sliding step after three consecutive hops have been completed: Picture No. 4—climax of dance, in which partners complete turning steps and "Put Little Foot There" by pointing left toe out, toe touching floor and heel being raised.

Strong Bandits Smash Open Market Safe and Get $664

The boldest robbery ever committed in Long Beach occurred at the Central Market Thursday night when approximately $664 was taken from the safe which had been forced open with a sledge hammer and a crowbar.

C. F. Dodds, and his wife, returning from the theatre after 12 o'clock Thursday night, found the back door open, indicating the burglars had left by that route. Entrance was gained by opening the skylight and letting themselves in with a rope, which was found with the sledge hammer and crowbar.

The safe was taken into the meat refrigerator where the dial could be hammered off with the sounds denoted. As the safe weighed 700 pounds, the burglars who had to carry it 50 feet into the refrigerator must have been strong men.

All the cash in the safe was taken but checks were left. The tools used by the safe-crackers were found near the refrigerator by Hal Sonichsen, butcher, at 8 a. m. when he came to work. Mr. and Mrs. Dodds, it was reported by deputy sheriffs, did not know of the burglary until then, believing that the door they found open had been left that way accidentally.

Descriptions of three suspicious persons who had been in the store several times recently were furnished investigating officers.

Early Friday morning the cafe at 1670 Roosevelt Highway was robbed of $50. Mrs. Alice Patton, proprietor, stated that a window had been forced open and footprints of two men were found outside the window.

HOME RANSACKED

Police are continuing to investigate the attempted burglary of J. B. Scott's home at 1438 El Prado Sunday night. The marauders, known to be young boys, gained entrance thru a bedroom window by cutting the screen. Nothing was missing, it was reported.

If "Anon" Will Identify Himself Will Print Poem

One of the most amusing "poems" pertaining to a local event was received during the past week by The Herald but it was signed merely "Anon."

The Herald would like to publish this poetic effort—it pertains to the coming Civil Service examinations to create an eligibility list for Torrance police and firemen—but...

The writer of all communications addressed to this newspaper must be identified—he may have his printed contribution signed with a name de plume if he desires. The Herald does not publish anonymous letters.

"So if 'Anon' will let the editor know who he is—we'll be glad to pass on our enjoyment of his 'poem'—even under a pen-name if he so desires."

Constitution Words are Declared Too Hard on Prospective Citizens

Asserting that worthy citizens are being barred from voting because they cannot pronounce properly some of the words in the Constitution, the Los Angeles county supervisors today were asked to sponsor a measure that would permit such people to exercise the full privileges of citizenship.

The request came from Lin Price, Los Angeles attorney, who said he had a client who is a naturalized citizen and voted in this country for nine years prior to April, 1939, when his registration was cancelled because he could not read the state Constitution. No reflection was cast on the registrar of voters because he was merely performing his official duties, the attorney said.

"Denial of the right to vote to this citizen, who is a home-owner, a business man of the highest type and who has an intelligent grasp of civic matters, gives to the query of whether the ability to read the Constitution is a fair test," Price wrote the supervisors.

"How many of the voters, for instance, could properly pronounce and understand the following words and phrases appearing in the Constitution: Eleemosynary, petit jury, eminent domain, initiative, referendum, certiorari, gubernatorial, ex post facto, ex officio, lieutenant, habeas corpus, Treaty of Queretaro, incompatible, inalienable, viva voce, mandamus, jeopardy, per diem and reprieve?"

"My suggestion is that a measure could well emanate from the board of supervisors rectifying such a situation which deprives worthy citizens from exercising the full privileges of citizenship, though they may be handicapped by the lack of opportunity to thoroughly familiarize themselves with the English language."

Briefly stated, Governor Olson says he will limit the call to the following subjects:

1. Relief. Even with $20,000.

2. New Taxes. Chronic headaches, new revenues will be sought to pay the cost of relief. A total of between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 is anticipated, with the legislature to choose between various types. It will be hard sledding for any of the propositions.

3. Old age pensions. While he undoubtedly was sincere, Olson must have been whistling if he hoped to get anywhere with liberalized pensions. No one denies it would be fine to drop the age limit from 65 to 60 and boost the $40 monthly maximum as much as possible, but the feat of raising $20,000,000 with a deficit increasing $2,500,000 per month is out of the question. As for a memorial to Congress for the same thing, that sounds fine and might pass but everyone knows that memorials are a dime a dozen in Washington.

4. Change in liquor control. The legal squabble in Southern California concerning the board of equalization gives the governor a good springboard for trying to take liquor control from the board and vesting it under a separate commission. The argument is that the board, originally created for tax problems, is not the correct spot for policing the mammoth liquor in-

METERCHECK PLAN

SOMETHING NEW IN BANKING

READ ABOUT IT

BILL: "What is this METER-CHECK Plan?"

DICK: "METERCHECK Plan is a new checking account service that is fair to everybody."

BILL: "Tell me about it."

DICK: "Under the METERCHECK Plan no minimum balances are required and no $1.00 monthly charge is made. Neither do you have to have $100.00 to open a checking account."

BILL: "That sounds interesting. Does the bank furnish your checks and keep your accounts for nothing?"

DICK: "No. They charge your account 5 cents for each check paid, to cover cost of imprinting the checks and the necessary bookkeeping and other services."

BILL: "That is just what I have been looking for. Last month I wrote four checks and they cost me $1. or 25 cents apiece. If I don't have a checking account, my wife has to take the car and drive around town to pay our bills, and with the difficulty of finding a place to park, it is expensive even when I pay with cash."

DICK: I have had the same experience, and this METER-CHECK Plan is just the thing, because you can regulate your own expense. If you only write one check a month, it will cost you but 5 cents."

BILL: "Where can I open a METER-CHECK account?"

DICK: "Only at the Torrance National Bank in Torrance, California."
