CARSONMART

THE GRAND OPENING OF

1929 CARSON TORRANCE

FRIDAY and SATURDAY

MARCH 29 and 30

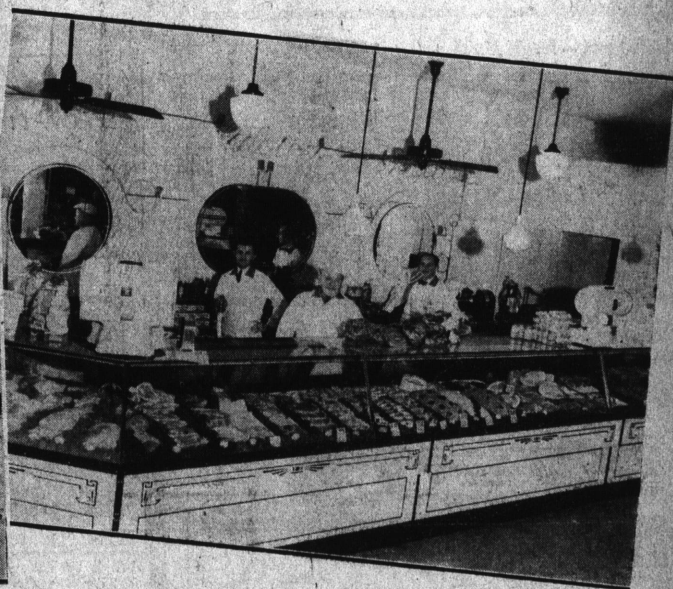

Gene Tawa, owner-operator of the vegetable department at the new Carsonmart, is shown here standing in the center of some of the fine produce which will be carried, fresh from farms and orchards, at the new shopping center. Tawa also stocks a wide selection of frosted by a new quick-freezing process, fresh vegetables and fruits, ready for serving.

Louis Dossi, owner of the new Carsonmart grocery, is shown here being assisted by his wife, Margaret, as he puts finishing touches on his display of food products. The new shelving arrangement, "no squint—no stoop" and identifying food prices, at the Carsonmart is clearly shown.

GROCERY DEPARTMENT HAS HUGE STOCK OF FINE FOODS

Ten years' experience in the grocery business in Southern California qualifies Louis Dossi, owner-manager of the grocery department of the new Carsonmart, at 1929 Carson street, as an able, honest and progressive purveyor of the finest in foods.

With his brother, Dossi, also operates two other markets, the Modern Food Market at 601 West Anaheim and the Avondale Shopper in the 900 block on Avalon, both in Wilmington.

Gene Tawa in Charge of Green Stuff

One of five brothers who have long been identified with vegetable markets in Wilmington and Long Beach, Gene Tawa, the manager of the Carsonmart's green grocery stands at 1929 Carson street, is a friendly merchant who really "knows his vegetables."

Grubb Has Been Here 18 Years

"Grubb's Meats" have been synonymous for high quality here for 18 years.

Henry Grubb, genial dispenser of those fine meats and meat products which have won the confidence of families throughout the harbor district, needs no introduction as the owner-manager of the Carsonmart's meat department at 1929 Carson street.

NEW CARSONMART ENLARGES TORRANCE SHOPPING DISTRICT

With the grand opening of the new Carsonmart at 1929 Carson street scheduled for today, Friday and Saturday, the "Greater Carson Street Shopping Center" becomes one of the major extensions of the Torrance business center.

In the area between Cabrillo and Arlington avenues is to be found a score or more of shops whose services have won the high esteem of many local residents and out-of-town patrons. The new Carsonmart today takes its place among those business firms on Carson street which have formed a neighborhood trade center that draws patronage from a wide area.

Completely redecorated, equipped with the latest fixtures and stocked with a wide variety of high quality food products, the new market departments are now ready to serve everyone in the harbor area.

Both the owners of the grocery and vegetable markets are new to Torrance but not to their respective businesses. Louis Dossi is owner-manager of the well-stocked grocery department while Gene Tawa is in charge of the vegetable unit.

The meat market continues under the management of the veteran Henry Grubb, who has spent 14 of his 18 years in Torrance at 1929 Carson street.

All three department managers are combining to present an outstanding array of special food bargains this weekend as their introduction of the new Carsonmart.
