

Get New Driver's License Now or Face Long Wait

California motorists holding 1927 drivers' licenses are facing long hours waiting in line for new licenses unless there is an increase at once in the number of applicants, it was announced today by Joe Mattson, director of motor vehicles.

Of the more than 400,000 1927 licenses outstanding only 27,000 have applied for new licenses in anticipation of the July 1st date for cancellation, Mattson said.

"With only 48 working days left before July 1 and this many applicants to be examined it appears as if we will have long waiting lines," he said. "The only alternative is for all holders of 1927 licenses to apply as soon as possible at the nearest office of the Department of Motor Vehicles or Highway Patrol. There is no charge for the new type license and the examination given is not designed to work hardships on anyone."
