TROOP 4, G.S.A. GETS PINS
Main feature of a delightful dinner-program at the Guild hall of St. Andrew's Episcopal church last Friday night was the presentation of pins to the 14 members of Troop 4, Girl Scouts of America. Left to right, back row: Jane Scotton, Marjorie Dunham, Barbara Smith, Mrs. Ferne A. Cheesman, assistant Scout leader; JoAnn

Girls Entertain 40 at Dinner and Program

Friday night's drenching down-pour was no barrier to the 14 Girl Scouts, their leaders, sponsors and parents, numbering about 40, who enjoyed the dinner-program presented by the girls themselves in St. Andrew's Episcopal church Guild hall. That church-sponsored troop prepared and served the dinner and then entertained their guests with a program consisting of piano numbers by Nancy Ann Whyte, accordion solos by Bonnie Jean Edison and an amusing folk dance directed by Mrs. Julia Cuedi.

Rev. Thomas R. Marshall, vicar of the church, greeted the new Girl Scout troop and pledged the parish's full support to its endeavors. While formed in a U-shaped group, the girls advanced to receive their pins from Mrs. Emma Quaggin, Scout leader, and Mrs. Ferne A. Cheesman, assistant leader, and were thus formally received "into the sisterhood of Girl Scouts."

The girls are now hard at work training for the various merit awards and honors that are available to Girl Scouts.
