Found Safe

board of education and stylicials.

All other buildings — the remainder of the high school structures, Elementary and Fern Avenue — were found to be in need of only minor repairs. In some parts of the high school, minor structural rehabilitation will be necessary.

But the schools opened as usial Monday morning following he Friday holiday.

Kersey in Statement

o, Superintendent Kersey said would issue a reassuring tement to the Los Angeles as on his return to that city. Your schools took the shocks y well, considering their evitintensity." he told The ald. "I shall be glad to rethat, hysterical statements the contrary, Torrance is not ly off. Phone Service Tested to Limit In Emergency

"At one time Friday morning the switchboard looked like a Christmas tree."

That's the way George Drapper, Torrance phone manager described the scene that continued until noon that day at the Southern California Telephone control of the Telephone operators, two deep the service of the Southern Co. office on Sartori ave Telephone operators, two deep at the switchboard, handled a tremeridous amount of calls.

Many patrons were unable to get service early Friday morning or account of the rush but, with few exceptions, the lines were uninterrupted by quake damage. The overload on—the lines disrupted the service and operators were forced to try and picit out those which were emergerity calls.

Otherials On Hand
Long before dawn "trouble trucks" were moving into the city to reators service at points where consmunication was broken. Operators appeared at the phone heas' quarters from Lomita, Compton, Wilmington, Redondo Beach, San Pedro and Los Angeles, They took the places of the "helio girls" who had been on duty for hours trying to keep up with the demand.

Graham Mehaffey, district traffic superintendent, was on the job early with Fred W. Smith, district manager from San Pedro. Evon Los Angeles officials of the phone company came to Torranave to see that service was extended and every effort made to assure quick connections between relatives and friends, business firms and in surance adjusters.

A half-dozen "tryuble trucks" and about 25 men were flung into the Torrance area for a complete check-up of the lines.

Thousands of Calls

While the power was off, gas lamps and automobile batteries gave light to the operators as they plugged in and out at the glowing switchboard. It was estimated by company officials on the seene, that approximately 1,200 calls an hour were averaged Priday morning from about 7 o'clock until noon. Fifty incoming calls per minute were checked at one time and all out-going truthe lines were operated in case of any further emergency.

Although swamped by calls, the operators never lost their traditional courtesy and many patrons are grateful for the special attention the company workers gave to emergency calls routed through to inquire for or to allay fears about relatives in this city. The first — and hardest earth tremor was a nerve-waxeking thing but the operators remained at their posts without exception althous said:

"I felt like I never wanted to see the mountains of old Wyoming so, badly in all my life as I did when I was spun almost out of my chair!"

Early construction of a $7,296,000 aluminum extrusion plant, which, unconfirmed reports indicate will be located on Western ave., south of 190th st., was aniounced yesterday by the Defense Plant Corporation at Washington, D. C.

Contract for the plant has already been let, according to the Defense Plant Corporation. It will be operated by the Bohn Aluminum & Brass Corporation. The plant here will cost $3,598,000 to be spent on land and buildings.

While admitting that regotiations for purchase of the site adjoining Torrance in the Los Angeles Shoestring strip have been under way, officers of the Dominguez Estates Company, owners of the land, would not confirm the sale.

The Defense Plant Corporation will retain title to the plant but Bohn will operate it under a seven-year lease, the Washingston announcement states. Another plant will be built by the Bohn company at Adrian, which will cost $3,935,000, it was an pounced.

Only a portion of one school building — the Science structure at the high school — was ordered definitely closed Friday noon following a thorough inspection of all schools here by a group of state, Los Angeles board of education and city officials.

temblors, was so badly cracked that the building was unsafe for further use.

He could not say what will be done with that structure other than "undoubtedly it will be thoroughly studied both in resignard to its repair possibilities and essential use." All other high school buildings came thru without much damage. Many seveloped cracks but the stresses were not impaired, in the opinion of the experts.

Assistant Superintendent Robert Hill Lane was quoted as saying the Fern Avenue school emerged from the shaking with less damage than any school in the area. Only superficial cracks were noted by the inspectors at the Elementary school.

All Carson Street school pupils are asked by the board of education to assemble at the school Monday morning. Nov. 24, by 11:30 a. m. They will then be transported by bus to the Dominguez school, it was announced.

Colorado Paper

Gives Lurid Report From his sister in Loveland, Colo., Police Chief John Strob received a frantic telephone call Saturday morning. She had just read in the Denver (Colo.) Fost a lurid account of the quake here which had the city virtually "leveled to the ground" and a great number of casualities.

After assuring her that the shocks caused no injuries and wasn't a tenth as bad as reported, Strob turned from the phone to accept a telegram from his father, also in Colorado. The elder Stroh demanded a return wire as to the state of the family here.

Local police also received a long distance phone call from Ell Paso, Texas, inquiring about relatives here.
