

V-Mail Blanks Get Fast Transit To Service Men

In an attempt to save vitally needed cargo space for war supplies, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the U. S. Pacific Fleet, this week issued an appeal to families of service men to use the new, fast V-mail system for correspondence from the United States to forces afloat and on foreign shores.

V-mail blanks are obtainable at any postoffice, he explained and correspondence on them receives first priority in air shipment. It is sent to San Francisco for direct forwarding to service men.

One mail bag of photographed letters can carry all the correspondence formerly using more than 25 sacks. The extra space thus saved is used to transport war materials. The new system consists of photostating letters and forwarding film to be reproduced on 4 x 5 1/2 inch enlargements for delivery to addressees.

Cite Advantages
"Delivery of personal correspondence by means of microfilm should ease the congestion now present in our greatly overtaxed postal system," the Admiral said.

Whereas regular mail service from the Pacific area to continental points takes many days—even weeks—V-mail is dispatched by first available air transportation from the islands and averages but four days for Pacific Coast delivery, and six days for delivery on the East Coast.

Letters written on V-mail forms and posted for censorship are not read again until they reach their destination. Naval officers said. They added that resulting speed, privacy, and economy lend every advantage to users of the new microfilm mail service.

Do That Christmas Mailing Soon For Service Men Overseas

If you want to insure the best possible Christmas for your husband, son, sweetheart or friend in the Navy or Marine Corps abroad, mail that package or card between Oct. 1 and Nov. 1, and the sooner the better.

That was the advice of Navy and Postal officials this week in publishing a list of instructions governing the sending of Christmas mail to men in the service.

Carelessness in choosing gifts or in packaging and mailing them, and failure to mail early enough, they warned, may mean little Yuletide cheer for the nation's gallant fighting men. Special efforts will be made to deliver parcels labeled "Christmas Parcel" in time for Christmas, it was announced.

Size, Weight Limited
As for selection of gifts, the Navy recommended that articles be easily portable and useful in any climate. In this category are toilet kits, watches, notebooks, pipes, wallets, pens or pencils and photographs. Electrical apparatus is of doubtful value and perishable matter should be avoided because necessary delay in handling under war conditions often cause such gifts to arrive in deteriorated condition. Clothing should not be sent unless it has been specifically requested.

Postal regulations prohibit the sending of intoxicants, inflammable materials, including matches of all kinds and lighter fluids, and poisons or compositions which may kill or injure another.

Because of the urgent need of shipping space for war materials, the size of Christmas parcels should not exceed that of an ordinary shoe box and should not weigh over six pounds.

Pack 'em Tightly
Parcels should be packed in substantial boxes or containers and should be covered by strong wrappers. Delay will be avoided if packages are not sealed, but are tied or secured so as to be readily opened for censoring. Sealed packages of cigars, tobacco and toilet articles in simplest mercantile form, however may be enclosed within packages.

Contents of packages should be packed tightly to avoid damage in transit, while sharp instruments such as knives and razors should have their edges protected.

Parcels for naval personnel abroad should show, in addition to the name and address of the sender, the name, rank or rating of the addressee and the naval unit or ship to which he is assigned. In no case, however, should the location of the unit or ship be mentioned, as it might reveal military information.
