Limitation on Improvements May Hamper Home Building

Because any public improvement costing more than $1000 now must get Federal approval, the request by J. H. Pine, home developer here, that the city pledge the installation of curbs, sidewalks and gutters on the east side of Cabrillo ave., near 222nd st., by Aug. 31, was held up by the city council at an adjourned meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Pine informed the council by letter that the National Housing Authority will not grant him priorities for several homes in that vicinity until the street improvements are guaranteed by that date. The $1000 limitation was called to the council's attention by City Engineer Glenn Jain.

Although the council went on record April 13 as agreeing to install the improvements on the east side of Cabrillo from 222nd st. to Plaza del Arno, Engineer Jain was instructed Tuesday afternoon to obtain further information on the priority requirements before taking any action. The engineer was authorized to grade 213th st. between Border and Western ave. and install necessary curbs and gutters at a cost not to exceed the Federal limitation. The improvement will also include the removal of trees on both sides of 213th st., and the funds will be taken from the county "aid to cities" revenue.

City Clerk A. H. Bartlett was also instructed to advertise for bids for the re-surfacing of 213th st. between Border and Western, the cost of this improvement to come from the same source.

RETURNS EAST

Mrs. James Cunningham, who has been visiting at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. J. H. Young, left Saturday for Duluth, Minn. Upon her return she will be joined by her children, Helen, 6, and Ralph, 8.

Government Owns Half of State: Tax Cut

(By United Press)

SACRAMENTO. — It is astounding to learn that half the state of California is owned by the federal and state government, hence exempt from local taxation. Who would think that a typical mountain county like Trinity is 72 per cent owned by the federal government?

It is facts like these that made the legislature sit up and take notice. It ties with the whole question of state's rights and the gradual encroachment of bureaucracy on local government. It is one of the key points of Governor Warren's philosophy that the state is an important part of society and must assert its independence.

Part of this difficulty in absentee ownership is the fact that the legislature in 1935 was asleep to the potential effects of a bill enacted into law. It had the effect of giving automatic consent to the government for taking over state lands for forest purposes. No one could stop the practice.

Foresees Bankruptcy
As of two years ago, here is the startling record of federal land holdings in the west: California, 39.46 per cent; Nevada, 82 per cent; Oregon, 46; Washington, 32; Arizona, 63; Idaho, 42 and Montana, 60. The average in eastern states is barely 1 per cent but the later growth and expansion in the west, together with the water sheds, forests, reclamation areas and other development has brought an unwieldy proportion.

In the past two years alone, federal holdings in California have increased from 39 to 42 per cent, and the addition of state lands brings the total to 49 per cent.

The big headache is that these lands stop paying taxes. The burden of local taxation goes upon a smaller and smaller group, to the point of oppression. Edwin J. Regan, district attorney of Trinity county, told the senate governmental efficiency committee that unless halted, the practice would bankrupt many small counties in 15 or 20 years.

Proposes Law Repeal
Locking the barn after the horse is stolen, so to speak, the legislature now proposes to repeal the automatic permission law and give the local boards of supervisors power to approve or reject the federal requests. This would apply to forest lands, which is the big issue in California.

Congress has been importuned repeatedly to pay reasonable taxes to local government for the extensive holdings and some day may do it. Something has to be done if these small local governments are to survive.

Red Cross War Fund Campaign Still Short of $7,500 Goal Here

Still $148.19 short of the goal of $7500, volunteer workers for the Red Cross War Fund campaign were "scraping the bottom of the barrel" here today in an effort to bring the five-week-old drive to a conclusion this weekend. The total contributions reported to The Herald yesterday were $7,351.81.

Clothes Hoarding Held Useless

LOS ANGELES.—"What has happened to the average woman's judgment regarding clothes? What attitude has suddenly plunged her into one of the most hectic and unreasonable buying sprees of clothing history?" Mrs. Patricia L. Hungerland of the home economics department at U.C.L.A., answers these questions.

"We read daily of the enormous sales volume in retail stores. One woman buys six expensive suits. Another, 20 pairs of white cotton gloves. Another, three top coats. Are these women prompted solely by greed, or do they really think they are providing wisely for some uncertain future?"

"What is Mrs. Hoarder going to do with all the clothes? She may have enough wealth to give it all to charity within a year or two, a gesture beneficent but hardly thrifty. She may wear it several seasons and then go to the trouble and expense of having it remodeled. Or she may believe she will be content to wear these clothes for the duration, should it last until 1950.

"War or no war, restrictions or not, fashions will change. Even with clothing rationed women will want to buy something new at intervals. There is not a woman alive who will not want something new. And she will not be happy wearing one of her six suits dated spring 1943. When she sees the new, good-looking synthetic or alternate fibers, Mrs. Hoarder will long to enjoy them with her more patriotic neighbors."

AT ROSEMEAD
Mr. and Mrs. Hillman R. Lee were dinner guests Sunday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Phillips at Rosemead.

More than five of these can be used in any one pattern and manufacturing methods are simplified while on children's and infants' these colors are reduced from 30 in the past to seven, half-size may not be made in sizes over 7½ and splicing or reinforcing in the feet is banned.

ON SCHOOL LEAVE
Miss Doris Kresse returned from Bakersfield, where she is teaching, to spend spring vacation with her parents here.

RETURN HOME
Mrs. Frank Falla and infant daughter have returned from Compton where they were visiting her mother.
