The Post War Recreation Center provides for one Post War Recreation Center for each four thousand five hundred population of the City of Torrance based upon the 1940 Federal Census; authorizes Post War Recreation Centers to carry on the following recreational games commonly known as contract bridge, auction bridge, pinocle, cribbage, five hundred, hearts, rummy, solo, checkers, chess, or any other recreational and social games not forbidden by the state laws of the State of California; provides for establishing a fund from these recreational games for aiding wounded or returning men and women of war, their wives or children, widows or orphans, to be handled through well-known patriotic lodges or organizations; provides for zoning that portion of the city where the recreation centers may be maintained and repeals any and all ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict with this measure and its purposes and objects; provides for non-interference with same and for penalties for violation of said measure.

STATEMENT IN SUPPORT OF PROPOSED PETITION
Our great success in the war zones has had its cost in war casualties. It has also left its widows and orphans. Members of the armed forces are being returned home daily and discharged. The families of those remaining in the graves of Europe and Asia need local help. The voters of Torrance desire to be among the first to help and to provide means of help. A non-profit association, will provide quick methods of raising funds for this highly beneficial service without cost to the taxpayers of Torrance. The funds will be dispensed in accordance with the directions of a committee of members of local organizations that are patriotically aiding and assisting wonderfully in warfare war work.

Ration Board Needs Data on Used Car Sales

If the family auto is sold or if you buy a used car, you'll want to get the specific information on ceiling prices from the price clerk of your war price and rationing board, according to F. W. Daniels, chief clerk of the Torrance board. All used cars, whether sold by individuals or dealers, now are price controlled.
In order to find the exact ceiling price for any car the price clerk will need the following definite information—make, year, model, body type, and whether the car has a heater, radio or any special factory built-in equipment.
