Ride-Sharing Is Asked as Gas Allowances Cut

Local OPA boards Tuesday, Aug. 1 began refusing to issue full supplemental rations for home-to-work driving to automobile owners who have not formed a full car club. As the new nation-wide program to step up the efficiency of car pooling was put into effect, the Torrance Industrial Share-the-Ride Committee, 1927

Carson Blvd., was prepared to increase its service to Torrance workers and motorists in aiding them to secure rides or the required riders or drivers.

Starting Tuesday, Aug. 1, local OPA boards issue only enough gasoline for 30 days to drivers who do not have full ride-sharing arrangements. During the 30-day period, all applicants will be expected to recruit their car clubs to full strength. The mileage rationing regulations require home-to-work drivers to carry three riders, in addition to the driver, in order to qualify for supplemental mileage. Those who meet this qualification within the 30-day period will be granted full three-month rations by their local boards, the OPA said.

In Torrance, the Share-the-Ride group assists by finding riders. The kind of car club OPA wished to encourage by this policy, officials said, is that in which members rotate the use of cars, ride together and leave at home cars that otherwise would be using up gasoline, rubber and parts. Boards will ask the ration holder to present the signature of his riders along with his application for supplemental mileage.
