

No Opposition To Vets' Aid Bill On Fall Ballot

By CNPA Service

Copies of the ballot arguments to voters, issued by Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan at Sacramento, show no opposition registered against Proposition No. 1, the act providing a thirty million dollar bond issue, to be used by the Veterans' Welfare Board in assisting California World War II farmers. Patterned after the four bond measures adopted by California voters overwhelmingly in 1922, 1926, 1930 and 1934, enabling 20,000 World War I veterans to secure farms and homes aggregating $89,000,000 in value, Proposition No. 1 on the Nov. 7 ballot is receiving united and enthusiastic support from public to State Commander Ed W. Bolt of the American Legion, and chairman of the Veterans' Home and Farm Committee.

Ballot Argument

"Adoption of Proposition No. 1 by California voters will give men and women veterans of World War II opportunity to acquire farms and homes of their own selection in their several have their friends," the ballot argument signed by a group of distinguished California war veterans' leaders, headed by State Senator George J. Hatfield, states. "It will do this at reasonable prices, with small monthly payments, and at a low rate of interest, all made possible because of the state's buying power, and the use of its credit in making the money available. "Without costing the state, penny, the passage of Proposition No. 1 by a tremendous vote will be a token of the grateful respect which is ours for those sons and daughters of California who are giving their all throughout the seven seas in a war-torn world."

Association Approves

Joining with several hundred civic, patriotic, labor, industrial, business and welfare organizations of the state in warmly endorsing Proposition No. 1, the tion has notified chairman Thomas J. Riordan of the Veterans' Welfare Board, of the association's unanimous adoption of a resolution approving the measure, signed by state president Frank L. Whitelock and other officers of the California State Real Estate Association.
