State Guard to Use Newspapers In Recruiting

Newspapers of Long Beach, San Pedro, Wilmington, Bellflower, Redondo Beach, Torrance and Hermosa Beach will be used to carry the sponsored advertising appeal to readers for recruits for the California State Guard.

This was revealed here today by Lt. Col. E. E. Foulkes, of the staff of Brig. Gen. Victor R. Hansen, the adjutant general, during a conference with officers of the Ninth Tactical Command and the Second Battalion of the State Guard.

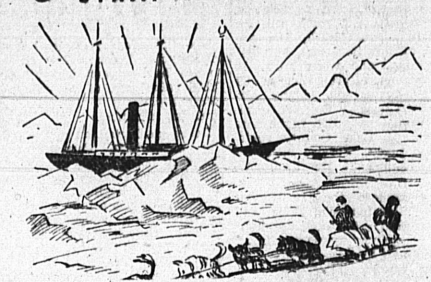

Colonel Foulkes said that already for distribution is a folder of newspaper advertising mats for use of the various newspapers and units of the State Guard in securing sponsors, but that many of the larger firms and corporations already have sponsored advertisements soon to be released to the newspapers.

"The function of the State Guard has been recently recognized by advertising clubs of the Pacific Advertising Association as an essential war activity," Colonel Foulkes said. "This recognition places sponsored State Guard advertising in the category of War Bonds, Blood Bank, the recruiting of WAC, WAVES, SPAR and other advertised war effort campaigns."

Meeting with Colonel Foulkes were Col. John C. French, commanding the Ninth Tactical Command of the Guard, Lt. Col. T. A. Gregory, his executive officer; Maj. A. Milton Fish, commanding the Second Battalion; First Lt. Frank S. Selover, public relations, press, and communications officer on the staff of Major Fish.
