All Veterans Placed In Jobs; Local USES Staff Completes New Training

Interviewers in the Torrance office of the United States Employment Service have just completed a concentrated veterans' training program under the direction of Mrs. Edythe Kennedy, State War Manpower Commission of Special Service, and J. J. MacGillivray, State Veterans' Employment Representative, War Manpower Commission.

"So far, the Torrance USES office has managed to place all veterans who have asked assistance," Kenneth Bradley, manager stated. "This could not have been done without the complete cooperation of the employers in our community."

Bradley revealed that his office is placing more than two hundred veterans a month, many of them disabled. Those with physical disabilities are given special attention in order that they may be directed to jobs where they can do completely satisfactory work.

"Every war produces its casualties. Already our men are returning, many with injuries which require vocational rehabilitation. The activities involved in assisting these returning veterans require special training. The USES is equipping its staff, through training, to do an effective rehabilitation counseling and placement job," Bradley said.

Statistics show that California is leading the nation in the placing of veterans. January placement figures show California leading with 8,788, and New York with a close third with 8,438. Texas places third with 6,708. Pennsylvania, Illinois, and Ohio follow with placements of slightly more than 5,000 each. Other states have a much lower average. California, Oregon and Washington have a combined placement of 14,285.

Bradley also pointed out that every USES office is a Veterans' Information Center and that in addition to finding veterans jobs, his office also directs them to any additional veterans' facility which they may need. As a result of the Veterans' Information Center in the local USES office, six veterans are taking advantage of the vocational training program to which they are entitled; many are receiving hospital attention; some have been referred to the Veterans' Administration as well as to many other agencies which serve the veteran.

U.S. History Exam For Graduates May Be Required

High school graduates will have to pass a test in American history before being awarded their diplomas according to the measure introduced yesterday by Assemblyman Ralph C. Dills in the California Legislature.

Dills, who has a prominent record in California educational circles as well as being one of the most influential Democratic members of the Assembly, succeeded in passing the American history measure through the lower house by a unanimous vote. Senate action is expected early next week.

"Only by having a thorough knowledge of the sacrifices made by our early statesmen and patriots can we have a real and sufficient appreciation of our Nation and its Democratic form of government," Dills declared. "We are all too prone to take too much for granted. A study of our great and illustrious past reveals that our advances have only come through the foresight and integrity of our early leaders," Dills concluded.

Ceiling Price On Cheese Is Ordered Cut

Retail ceiling price reductions of from one to three cents on package and glass contained cream and neufchatel cheese will be reflected here by a readjustment at the wholesale level, the Office of Price Administration announced today.

While the slightly reduced wholesale prices will become effective next Monday, H. E. Sandberg, OPA food price specialist, pointed out that the reductions to the consumer would probably be delayed until about April 26.

The pricing official said the new maximum prices would vary at the different markets, depending on each establishment's business volume.

Highest retail ceiling prices on the three-ounce package of cream cheese will be 12 cents, while the eight-ounce package of neufchatel will be 24 or 25 cents, depending on the amount of milk fat contained. The same product packaged in five-ounce glass containers will be 19 and 20 cents.

Non-Highway Gas Rations To Be Tighter

Tightening of rules governing the rationing of non-highway gasoline, in effect here May 1. Information to this effect was forthcoming today from Paul Barksdale, OPA district rationing executive.

"D'Orr declared that in the future, farmers and operators of gasoline engines in connection with construction and other work will be required to keep strict account of the fuel used over a given period, and that subsequent allotment would be based on the amount used during that period.

Heretofore, the rationing official pointed out, individual allotments of "E" and "R" coupons had been supplied non-highway gasoline consumers and no record of the amount used has been required.

Under the new method of procedure, consumers will be supplied with a form on which his gasoline purchases will be noted by the supplier. The number of "E" and "R" coupons allotted to the purchaser will be noted on the form by his ration board.

d'Orr said the procedure, known as the "Lancaster plan," and first used in Lancaster, Penn., had resulted on a fuel saving of 28 percent in that district.

Classes Starting For Expectant Mothers Here

Classes open to all expectant mothers in the community are being held every Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Torrance Health Center, 2300 Carson st., according to Miss Clara Barrows, public health nurse who will be in charge of the course.

"In this busy war period many physicians are recommending that their maternity patients enroll in this class," Miss Barrows said.

"For war brides who are newcomers in the community and who have no member of their families near to offer help and advice, the course is of exceptional value," she pointed out. Miss Barrows is a Columbia University graduate in public health nursing and was connected with the Maternity Center Association in New York. Included in the course will be lessons on making the bassinet and layette, feeding formulas, bathing the baby, and nutrition for the prospective mother.

Postal Pay Bill Depends On Public Aid

Consideration of the Burch Bill, which would grant postal employees their first permanent pay raise in 20 years, has moved a step nearer to action by the Congress. The House post office and post roads committee which has been working on this legislation, completed its hearings last Tuesday when over 100 congressmen showed up to testify in favor of immediate consideration by the Congress. But this number of congressmen does not assure passage through the House. Unless the general public signifies its interest in the legislation by writing to their representative in the nation's capital and telling him they want the Burch Bill H. R. 2071, passed immediately, your letter carrier and postal clerk may have to take a big hitch in his belt.

Local officers of the carriers and clerks here in Torrance have stated that this bill is much more important to them than just trying to get the permanent $1.30 per week raise it provides. Some time after the war started Congress voted the postal workers a $6 per week temporary war bonus. This bonus is due to end on June 30 of this year. That's less than three months away. If legislation is not passed, the post office employees will immediately revert back to their 1935 salary schedules. It means they will take a $6 per week pay cut during these boom times. The only reason of this problem is in passage of the Burch Bill which would continue the $6 a week bonus and provide an additional $1.30 per week permanent raise.

The role that readers of this paper can play in getting a pay raise for these deserving public servants is quite simple. Congress is the servant of the people. So tell your congressman and senators what you want done. Write a letter to your congressman, House Office building, Washington 25, D. C., and request that he support H. R. 2071, the postal pay increase bill. Then write a letter to each of California's two senators, Hiram Johnson and Sheridan Downey, Senate Office building, Washington 25, D. C., requesting that they support H. R. 2071 when it reaches the senate. Do it right now. The postman needs your help!

Do this essential wartime service in just two hours per week!

Right now, in your community, enrollment applications are being accepted in the California State Guard. This newly re-organized State force, acting in the place of the National Guard (now overseas) is set up as an organized military reserve . . . trained and ready to protect life and property in your community in time of emergency. No State Guard unit can be called to serve outside its own county—your unit is for your community.

We think you'll enjoy serving in the State Guard. Besides knowing that you're doing an important wartime job, you'll enjoy this training—it's exciting and good for your personal development. Then too, while you're not actually in the Army, and cannot be called as a force into Federal service, you are performing a vital military function on the homefront.

Important to you is the fact that service in the Guard takes only two hours, one night a week. In these two hours—through army-trained instructors and army-produced sound films—you learn military tactics, Judo, scouting, how to handle and fire Thompson submachine guns, machine guns and army rifles. All uniforms and equipment are G.I. and are furnished free.

All in all, it's a good deal. Why not get all the facts and details right now? Call in person or send for the new, illustrated booklet giving all details about the California State Guard.
