FAIRFLEET PLAN APPROVED BY HARBOR DISTRICT C. OF C. AS IT GAINS WIDE FAVOR

The FairFleet proposal of Edsel Newton, Torrance and Long Beach newsman, was endorsed Friday night by the Harbor District Chamber of Commerce, meeting at Compton. The action was taken on recommendation of the San Pedro chamber. Newton's plan for the world-touring exposition, with exhibits fitted into postwar surplus Liberty ships decked out in a riot of color have been hailed throughout the nation and large industrialists are considering it. Washington, D.C., officials have given it the stamp of approval providing it is sponsored by proper capital.

Newton says the FairFleet would cost in the neighborhood of $20,000,000, including a year of operating costs but estimates on the strength of population near the three United States coasts alone that showings in 15 domestic ports would bring in about $100,000,000 gross.

From there on, he points out, "it would be anybody's guess but it should do well in at least 40 leading world ports."

He adds: "It is gratifying at the response from throughout the nation and the more letters we get from people in all walks of life the better."

The Harbor District chambers of commerce represents 50 civic and trade organizations in the south section of Los Angeles County.
