Al Despite the fact that the new regulations have been in effect for several weeks, many motorists still aren't familiar with changes in the California Vehicle Code, particularly that concerning right turns, according to reports.

Under the new law a motorist may turn right against a stop signal only at such intersections where signs permitting such right turns have been erected, and provided he yields the right of way to pedestrians and other traffic proceeding as directed by signal.

Another significant revision in the Code sharply increases the penalty for a violation of a pedestrian's right of way at a cross-walk, resulting in injury to the pedestrian. A maximum fine of $500, or jail for six months, or both, may be imposed, as compared with a previous total of $500, or jail for six months, or both, may be imposed, as compared with a previous total of $500, or led the driver. Previously stickers were limited to a seven of the driver, Previously stickers were limited to a seven inch square in the lower corner of the windshield, farthest removed from the driver's position.

The Code, likewise, classifies willful interference with the driver or mechanism of a vehicle of a vehicle as unlawful.
