General Omar N. Bradley, in an address before the American Council on Education, May 4, said 1,687,000 veterans had applied for training under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act. Some 27 percent of those approved already had enrolled in education and training courses. "The flood of returning servicemen to college campuses is a tremendous challenge to our educational system," General outhern California figures ording to the monthly repor April made by the VA re nal office, shows 95,275 vet as have filed applications in a part of the state. New illeations are coming in a rate of 900 per day.

Schools are jammed to capacity. The USES, veterans' organizations, labor unions and miployer groups are campaigning for additional on-the-job opanings to supply the veterans lemands for training. VA officials and school authorities throughout the nation rankly confess the number of seterans applying for training senefits is far beyond all estimates.
