L.A. School for Strip Delayed; May Send Children to Torrance Next Year

Plans are nearly completed and bids for the construction of a 15-classroom elementary school at 216th st., and Halldale ave., will probably be called in about three weeks, B. L. Kimball, Los Angeles Board of Education architect, announced Saturday. Plans to hold ground-breaking ceremonies early this month were postponed by litigation involving title to the land, which has delayed work on the project for several months. Originally scheduled to be completed by September, it will accommodate children in the

Wins Safety Essay Contest

Yovan Popovich, of 1444 W. 218th st., Torrance high school student, last week was declared first prize winner in the radio-essay contest sponsored by the Los Angeles Police department on the subject of "How the High School Driver Can Best Promote Traffic Safety." Young Popovich's essay was chosen from among numerous essays submitted by students from all high schools in the Los Angeles district. Awarded to the school was a trophy which may be kept for the period of one year. Yovan will appear on radio station KHJ Friday from 12:45 to 1 p.m., at which time he will read the prize-winning essay.

Shoestring Strip. If the building is not completed in time to accommodate the Shoestring Strip children this fall, they will be permitted to continue to attend Torrance City schools if they so desire, Vierling Kersey, Los Angeles superintendent of schools, declared Thursday. He told members of the Torrance Board of Education that where the child goes to school is up to the child and the parent. Those who want to continue coming to Torrance will be permitted to do so, under contract with the Torrance City School district, Kersey declared. Others will be transported to Lomita and Gardena until the building is completed, it was declared. A similar arrangement will apply to the high school, to be under Redondo Union High School district control it was indicated.

All students residing in Torrance will attend Torrance schools, no matter where they live, with transportation facilities provided as required by the State laws.

Torrance Plan Bargains Bring Many Thousands of Shoppers to District

Torrance merchants today are basking in a shower of approval—with certain reservations, that is—from the man in the street. "Anyone can answer that," Mrs. Nora Holloway, 22733 So. Main, told the Herald reporter who asked her if she'd like to see more "dollar days." "Certainly!" she averred. Mrs. Holloway, who has a grocery store, believes that prices will be lower if merchants work together.

W. H. Ball, 2453 Torrance blvd., was raving about a pair of sneakers he had purchased for a dollar. "This is a smart idea," he said of the Torrance plan. "It's about time! Prices here (referring to the West Coast) are generally higher than anywhere else in the country." A housewife's budget worries Mrs. Don Wolf of 1614 W. 216th st. "We housewives like bargains any time—but especially now," she enjoined.

Two Torrance ladies, who did not consider themselves qualified to answer "dollar day" queries, were in mourning. "We didn't buy anything," they said. "Everything vanished, too soon."

A survey made by the planning committee of the merchants division of the Chamber of Commerce revealed that Dollar Days last Friday and Saturday was the most successful event ever staged in this city. George Noonan, president of the association, said, "Frankly, I have never seen anything like it. Certainly it was the net result of careful planning and a sincere desire on the part of Torrance merchants to really give the people of this area real bargains."

"We decided in the beginning to lead the parade to lower retail prices, and there should be no question as to whether we did it or not. You cannot fool the public when it comes to values, and any merchant who thinks he can, has another thing coming. Torrance does not want to fool anyone. Torrance merchants have embarked on a program of building local trade on a sound and practical program. Not one of civic pride or duty of local people to trade at local stores, but one of giving people values and merchandise so it is to their advantage to trade in Torrance. Believe me, this is the only one that works, and we these values seem wonderful."

Orn thought Torrance should have more dollar days—"by all means." "The idea behind the local plans seems to be sweeping the country," he continued. Mrs. Rice was a mite dubious. "It may help," she said. "You never know until you try. Something should be done, that's certain."

Mrs. L. S. Milkavitch, 2453 Torrance blvd., complained, "Prices have been skyhigh and as merchants know it."

Roy Orm, 1048 1/2 219th st., and Mrs. R. E. Rice, 2146 Andrew st., housewife, thought the Torrance prices were about right.
