B. Bartlett, Edison district manager.

"The Edison budget for 1949 is about $14,000,000 greater than p in a t expenditures for 1948," Bartlett said, "and has been made necessary by Southern California's unprecedented growth and development.

"Some type of construction—work on either substations, lines, snops or office buildings—will be undertaken in nearly every territory served by the company.

"Increases in demand for electric service from both old and new customers, resulting from tremendous industrial a nd commercial development and the constantly growing population, have caused the Edison Company to schedule record expansion programs each year since the war's end," Bartlett said.

CALIFORNIA'S WEALTH

The first year of our second century since the discovery of gold in California is now past. Time moves swiftly, but not as swiftly as the developments which James Marshall touched off when he detected the magic metal at Sutter's mill on Jan. 24, 1848.

If Marshall could see California today his eyes would surely pop even more than they did on that fateful day 101 years ago. The wilderness is gone. The tough, teeming mining camps have disappeared or are mostly deserted. Today tall buildings rise where once is yonly silent fields. Today tall buildings rise where once stood only shacks and shanties. It was the lure of gold that brought men to California. But gold alone did not hold them and bring others later on. It was the greater wealth of the soil and forests and rivers, together with the trade, and commerce these made possible that accounted for the continued growth of the Golden State. The raw rugged wilderness of 1848 has become the great agricultural, industrial and financial center of 1949. It boasts two of the world's greatest cities, it proudly claims the world's largest bank, it is the center of the world's motion picture industry, the source of much of the world's motion picture industry, the source of much of the world's food, a leader in the designing and manufacture of sportswear.

The local unit will march in company with 10-spectacular electrical floats; General Mark W. Clark as grand marshal; armed services units; elephanis, clowns, beautiful girls and all the other elements of a great parade in the tradition established by last year's March of Dimes parade.

The 19 colossal electrical floats, ranging from 40 to 90 feet in length, never before have been seen in Southern California. Depicting imaginative themes from the sciences and arts, they range from simulated jet-activated aircraft to towering gorgyles and lush settings for beautiful girls in costumes that cascade flowers, plums and tinsel.

Strength—strength for the scientists and workers who combat polio, and strength for the current victims of the 'epidemic, strength of a nation eventually freed of the dread disease, will be the parade's motif, dramatized by crack units from the Army, Navy, Marlines, Air.
