Seaside Rancho

By Mrs. Evelyn Hyder

Our association meeting was quite a success last Thursday evening. Emmett Ingram spoke on the coming school bond election, and $15 was voted for publicity favorable to the school bond issue.

As you probably already know, Mrs. Wilson, Mary Conover's mother, won the first Jingle contest. Her guess was Dr. Vincent Rounds—and all her clues were correct. Among the prizes she chose were four hours of baby sitting by Margaret Roettger, load of wood from Paul Murray, car tune-up by Ed Spies, and a window wash by Connie Horn. She is going to choose two more at a later date.

Here is the new jingle: "I see a baby sea-gull And feathers floating down, Sand along a river After the sun goes down." Now for the first clue: "Hi Ya Yai"

My little flower, Now you have me In your power. Even if I can't get the right person, I sure have learned a lot of things that I didn't know before and my encyclopedia is certainly getting a workout.

You can make sure your entry has an early date on it by sending in an answer each time there is a new clue; that way if your entry is correct, you can add to your list each week. Remember—the entry bearing the earliest date and containing the most clues is the winner.

At the Las Vecinas board meeting last week, plans were made for many activities this season.

March 18 is the date set for a box social, where box lunches (or dinners) supplied by those attending will be auctioned off to the highest bidder.

The senior Girl Scouts enjoyed the play "The Man Who Came to Dinner" last Friday evening. They went in a group to the Baltimore theater and enjoyed refreshments later.

Our Intermediate Girl Scout troop held its first Court of Awards last Friday evening at the Seaside Elementary School. The girls first put on a play in pantomime depicting a typical day at camp. Different phases of camp life were portrayed in an interesting way, especially their "Scouts Own" ceremony, which showed how a simple poem, a short prayer and a religious or patriotic song brings into the camp routine a touch of seriousness that still does not detract from the fun. Following this came presentation of awards, a badge, and in some cases two, in recognition of the work done in the past year.

Mrs. Lois Greenwood was introduced as the leader of the Junior patrol, girls from 10 to 12 and Mrs. Bud Newborn, Brownie leader, presented two fly-ups with their wings.

I talked to the parents on camping plans for the year and explained that the girls are supposed to earn a great part of the money for their camping program. The troop funds (with the committee's O.K.) will be used to purchase as much equipment as possible.

The girls were busy little people this last week. Sunday they attended "Go To Church Sunday" under the auspices of the Girl Scouts, Los Angeles Council. The girls were given tickets to the ice hockey game between the Monarchs and the Shamrocks. One of the pucks that landed in our section was autographed by the referee as a souvenir for the troop.

The porchlight parade last Friday evening was a wonderful idea and was very successful here in S.R. This was the publicized "March of Mothers" the proceeds of which went to the March of Dimes.

The volunteers were Mrs. Paul Roettger, Mrs. Douglas Horn, Mrs. Derby Rosenberger, Mrs. Ted Gaul, Mrs. Jacobs and Mrs. Edwards. All houses where porchlights were lit were called on by these volunteers and a total of $72.69 was collected for the polo drive. Many thanks to these PTA volunteers.

Mrs. Carl Larkins went to the hospital last week for an operation. We are all wishing her a speedy recovery.

Our Cub Scouts are quite active these days with five dens formed. Mrs. Mildred Arndt had a meeting for the committee members Monday, February 13 when plans were made for the next pack meeting to be held February 24.

Paul and Margaret Roettger were hosts at a potluck dinner last Sunday evening. It was a pleasant evening with lots of good food; all we could eat. After dinner four tables of canasta were enjoyed by Virginia and Fred Knouse, Frankie and Paul Barth, Dorothy and Byron Johnson, Mrs. Wilson, Thelma and Bill Shockey, Evelyn and Bob Hyder. These dinners are planned for the benefit of Las Vecinas, with profits augmenting the budget.

Harry and Lois Greenwood gave a similar party Saturday evening. Their guests were Warren and Elizabeth Boggs, Jack and Dottie Pomeroy, Paul and Margaret Roettger, Don and Peg Hall and Jim and Chris Hall. These dinners provide a lot of old-fashioned fun at a very small cost. At Harry and Lois's party even though an evening of canasta had been planned, the time was spent around the piano harmonizing on old and new songs.

To welcome new neighbors, William and Freda Steinwach from Hermosa Beach. They are buying the Rounsaville house. They have two lovely children and Bill is employed by North American Aviation.

I ran across something that might interest the parents here in Seaside Rancho who are unable to get their children to Sunday school due to lack of transportation or other reasons. Our neighbors, the Goodrichs, at 5336 Reese road, have instituted a plan that many parents are taking advantage of. They have a church school class that is interdenominational in their home every Sunday afternoon between 4 and 5 p.m. Any child is welcome; the teachers are Mr. and Mrs. Walberg. He is the minister of the Congregational Church of Christ in Redondo. Mrs. Goodrich would like to see some new faces in the class Sunday afternoon.

The First Aid course that started last Monday evening looks as if it will be successful. A change was made in teachers for this class and Lt. Stidham of the life guards is now the instructor. If you are interested in this class it is held at Seaside Elementary School each Monday evening, from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock.

Mary Conover's sister, Mrs. F. W. Stieber, left for her home in Baltimore, Maryland last Wednesday after a very exciting visit with Mary and her mother. Some of the interesting places she visited while here were San Diego, San Francisco, Yosemite and Sequoia. Climaxing her stay was a lovely tea in her honor co-hosted by Ruth Hanover and Helen Schmitz. The tea held at the Schmitz home, attended by 60 guests, was one of the loveliest affairs ever given here. Tea was poured by Chris Hall and Mary Jane Miller.

Jean and Fred Keeshan received a novel valentine in the form of a new son February 14. He arrived at Torrance Memorial Hospital and is to be named Frederick, Jr.

A new class in crafts has been started at our adult evening school. In this class you will find instruction in leather, copper tooling and textile painting.

If you want to take up leather working you can learn to (Continued on Page 19)
