SWIMMING TOPS' SAYS L. A. RECREATION HEAD

Reporting facts uncovered by the LePort Recreation Survey, C. P. Nicolls, director of Parks, and Recreation for the City of Los Angeles, told the Swimming Pool Committee last Friday that swimming was found at the top of a list of benefits more often than all other activities surveyed.

The wartime Navy command.* et told the group that of 30 recreational activities, swimming was found tops in benefits derived from a standpoint of health, physical and social. It was also found best in promoting safety in sports and best from an educational aspect, he reported.

His statements, he said, were based on the recently completed with the group that any clipt of 20,000 or more should in gradient of the group that any clipt of 20,000 or more should assign and the group that any clipt of 20,000 or more should side many cities of even smaller side many cities of even side many cities of even smaller side many cities of even
