

General Petroleum Completes New Refinery Unit To Save Gas

Completion of the new $400,000 catalytic polymerization unit at the local plant by 700 barrels of high grade blending stocks each day, a company spokesman said this week. The blending stocks are used in the refinery's output of motor gasoline.

The new unit is fed with a mixture of two by-products of the refinery cracking operations, propane and propylene.

In the reactors of the new unit, the molecules of the propylene gas join up to make gasoline molecules which are liquid claim.

The propane which is used in the process is reclaimed after being purified, and is sold as liquefied petroleum gas.

The new polymerization unit was constructed by the Lummus Company.

To Talk on FDR

Albert S. Karr, El Camino College history instructor, has been asked to read his analysis of Franklin D. Roosevelt's letters at the 43rd annual meeting of the American Historical Association. The meeting will be held at Occidental College, December 27, 28 and 29.

GAS SAVER . . . this new catalytic polymerization unit at the GP refinery here saves 700 barrels of high quality gasoline daily out of what would otherwise be waste refinery gases. The unit cost more than $400,000.
