Window Holds Surprise for Diving Youth

A would-be jail escapee early Sunday morning discovered that his attempt to leap through a police station window only lead to quite a headache.

Ralph Ingla, 27 of Santa Monica has a couple of stitches in his skull to mark the spot. Ingla, according to Torrance police reports, was picked up Sunday morning along with three of his buddies in a slightly tipsy condition. They were brought to the station for booking. There Ingla, apparently not wishing to be fenced in, threw a chair through a window and then, in true movie style, dove through the broken glass.

There was a steel bar across the opening.

He came to several hours later at the Harbor General Hospital.

Back at the station he bailed out for $25 on the drunk charge and put up another $50 bail on the malicious mischief charge—namely, window breaking.

Considerable ivory is obtained from vast stores of mastodon and mammoth tusks found in Siberia and elsewhere.

PROJECTILE STUDY . . . Midshipman Richard Van Dyke, of 1519 West 214th street, is shown examining projectiles used in amphibious warfare. A student at Oregon State College, Van Dyke is among the more than 1600 NROTC students from 52 colleges throughout the United States. He is presently at Norfolk, Virginia.

DRIVER HURT . . . Injured last Thursday when the auto he was driving attempted to scoot beneath a gasoline tank truck trailer, was James Moore, 50, 1652 West 220th street. He suffered severe injuries after the crash, which occurred at Figueroa street near Lomita boulevard in Harbor City. He was taken to the Wilmington Emergency Hospital for initial treatment and later transferred to the Seaside Hospital in Long Beach.
