Nervy Bandit Back in Pokey

A bandit who posed as a witness to his own crime and laughed about it last week, is smiling out of the other side of his mouth today—in jail.

Behind bars again is Jack Allen Hendrix, 30, of Lawndale and a companion, Willard K. Reinking, 27, also of Lawndale.

Hendrix, nabbed last Sunday near Long Beach, admitted to sheriff's deputies he was the witness who gave deputies a description of a bandit who robbed Roth's Hawthorne store earlier in the week. He added after the robbery that he was unable to get out of the store and to avoid suspicion mingled among the group of witnesses and gave detectives a description of himself.

Ironically, the pair were nabbed by two merchant patrolmen Sunday night as they sat counting their haul to determine if crime doesn't pay after all. The patrolmen ran them in on general principles. They admitted the liquor store robbery and another in Torrance.

According to Detective Captain Ernie Ashton the pair also admitted holding up the Edwards Service Station at Redondo Beach and Hawthorne boulevard earlier this week.

Both were recently released from Folsom prison, according to Ashton's report.

College Cites Star, Producer Of New Movie

Adrienne Corri, who starred in "The River," and Kenneth McElldowney, producer of the motion picture, received citations from the El Camino College culture relations office last week.

The star, the producer, Mrs. McElldowney, and Mark Hendricks, manager of the Fine Arts theater, came to the local campus to receive the awards, and were guests of the college at an informal dinner in the Campus Center cafeteria.

Robert Englehart, director of cultural relations at El Camino College, made the awards on behalf of faculty members, who recently pre-screened "The River" at the Fine Arts Theater. The award was made for "an outstanding motion picture."

After accepting the citations and dining at El Camino, Miss Corri, and Mr. and Mrs. McElldowney boarded an airplane at International Airport for a flight to Washington, D. C., where the award-winning motion picture will be premiered.

The Washington premier of the motion picture is being sponsored by Madame Pandit Nehru, wife of the ambassador to the United States from India. Englehart has announced El Camino College has arranged a sale of reduced rate tickets for a showing of "The River." These tickets will be on sale at the college bookstore at a reduced price of $1 per person. The

'Aroused Public Needed' Safety Conference Told By Governor

Modernization of traffic regulations and the enlistment of public support for safety campaigns were listed as the two of the chief remedies for wholesale killing on the highways at the California Traffic Safety Conference in Sacramento last week, according to Police Chief John Stroth, who attended the meeting.

"What is really needed is an aroused public," Governor Earl Warren told the conference in his keynote speech.

Members of enforcement divisions, which included Chief Stroth; engineers, educators, public information officers, and motor vehicle administrators attended the conference, Stroth said. More than 800 were registered.

Among the things urgently needed, the delegates were told, are more adequate posting of regulations, public support of campaigns, no passing signs, warning signs, and above all, the modernization of our many outdated traffic laws.

The Torrance police chief joined in the panel discussions on enforcing the existing traffic regulations and in other discussions, he reports.

Scouts to Sell Christmas Trees on Installment Plan

Christmas trees on the installment plan will be offered to residents in this area this winter as the Torrance area Boy Scouts begin a ticket sale to stimulate sale of trees from a Boy Scout lot in Torrance.

Selling for 11 apiece, the tickets will be considered deposits toward the purchase of any tree on the lot, according to Lynn Dane, committee chairman of Troop 315.

"The purchaser must be satisfied," Dane promised. "If the ticket holder can't find the tree he wants, he can get his money back," he said.

The troops of the Torrance and Lomita areas will conduct the ticket sales on a contest basis. The troop selling the most tickets will get a $25 bonus. Trees for the Scout lot, to be located at Cravens avenue and Torrance boulevard, will be furnished by Carroll's wholesale and retail dealer of Lomita.

Troops will get 10 per cent of the sale price on each tree, Dane said.

Troops who have not been contacted about the Christmas tree sale were urged by Dane to phone him at Torrance 233-M.
