EVERYBODY LOVES LUCY... and no wonder! Lucille Ball is a gifted gal who can lay 'em low as a sultry glamour queen (big picture above) or lay 'em out as a rubber-faced comedienne. "I Love Lucy," which co-stars Lucy and hubby Desi Arnaz, just established a record with the highest national rating ever achieved by a regularly scheduled television show. More people see Lucy cavort each Monday than have ever viewed any other video show.

However, fortune hasn't always smiled so fondly on pert, red-haired Lucy. Her teacher in a New York dramatic school told her she was wasting her money. To prove him wrong she took a premature fling at a career on Broadway. Her first four jobs — all as chorus girl — ended in four prompt dismissals.

Lucille tried a new tack. She landed a $25-a-week modeling job with a wholesale dress company, which led to a better job with Harrie Carnegie. Just as she was beginning to gain recognition, a serious automobile accident shattered her career. It almost cost Lucy her life. The doctors told her she would never walk again.

It took her eight months in bed and three years of persistent, painful effort to reverse the doctors' gloomy prediction. Lucy couldn't be held back.

Lucy's luck took a turn for the better. Back to work as a model, Lucy was seen smiling sophisticatedly out of magazine and billboard cigarette advertisements everywhere. Hollywood scouts whisked her off to the film capital for a showgirl role in Eddie Cantor's "Roman Scandals."

Lucille was still far from being a star, but she was busy — but not prosperous.

Lucille walked into her first really big break after returning from her honeymoon in 1940 with Desi Arnaz. The role she played in "Big Street," adapted from a Damon Runyon story, made her a star overnight.

On her birthday (August 6) in 1942, Lucille signed a contract with MGM. Her first assignment for Metro was the title role in the lavish technicolor "Dulcy Was A Lady." Stellar roles followed in "Best Foot Forward" and "Meet The People." After completing "Easy to Wed" with Van Johnson, she headed for New York to be with her husband, then out of the Army and on his way to success in the orchestra business.

Skyrocketing now to unprecedented fame, this time as a television comedienne — Lucy has a new trick. And it's paying handsomely. Lucille and Desi own the show themselves, and pocket more than a $25,000-a-week budget. They fit each week's episode in Hollywood before a live audience.

On next Monday night's show, Lucille plans to show her audience why she rates tops among comedienne with another fun-filled domestic adventure. Husband Ricky will make the mistake of demanding punctuality. Lucy will give him punctuality until she has him howling to stop. "I Love Lucy" is on KNX channel 2, at 9 p.m. Mondays.

Fond of the rural life, Lucille and her husband own a five-acre ranch, Desilu, at Chatsworth. They like to raise cattle, chickens, dogs and cats, and while in farming. Enthusiastic fishermen, they spend about 90 percent of their time on the water. They have a ten-month-old daughter, Loretta, and a son, Desi Jr., who can manage on their own.
