Busy Career Women Receive Nation's "Hats Off"

A MOMENT OF RELAXATION . . In every secretary's day there must come a few minutes of rest and relaxation. The girls at Columbia Steel Co. in Torrance have a freshly-painted and redecorated lounge in which to discuss problems of the day, have a cup of coffee, and talk over Saturday night dates or new ideas for their homes. Above, Mrs. Kathleen Axson, secretary to F. E. Brunner, assistant super-

Secretaries Lauded in National Week

Salutes this week go to the secretaries of Torrance who, along with their career-sisters the country over, are being floored through National Secretaries. Week.

The "Week" is officially sanctioned by the U. S. Department of Commerce, in recognition of the girl behind the man be hind America's business,
Asked to-describe just what a secretary does, one Torrance executive said, "She is the main-stay of any busy official, Not only does she add an extra pair of hands and an extra mind to the daily routine, but she takes care of a myriad of necessary details which would 'bog down' the executive."

There are approximately 1.500,000 typists in the United States today. Most of them want to be secretary's prestige and pay and being 'one of the girls in the office."

Lually too, it means the difference between a secretary's prestige and pay and being 'one of the girls in the office."

Lually too, it means the difference between working WITH one man against working WIT from several months, to several years.

As opposed to the stenographer or clerk typist, the secretary is in an executive position. She must know almost as much about the business as her boss, must be able to deal with a grant warely of people.

While stenographic jobs are used by many as a stepping stone to secretarial positions, others use the secretarial jobs as a means of gaining entrance into professional positions.

This is true particularly in the publishing field, where many magazine staff members got their start as secretaries to ton members of the organization. It is true in advertising agencies as well, and in many others.

National Secretaries Week is a salute to girls from coast to coast for their professional skill and for the help they give their employers in the intelligent disposition of daily business problems. Hats off!

TAKE A LETTER, PLEASE... one of the many duties of a secretary is taking dictation from her employer, whether it be a letter to a business associate, an outline of a speech he must make, or an answer to a request about information concerning his product. Here Mrs. Myrtle Maier puts her shorthand to use taking a letter from her "boss," A. E. Thompson, manager of the Torrance General Petroleum refinery. Helpful in a secretary's work is a knowledge of the terminology used in whatever type of business she is associated with Petroleum, like law or medicine, has many technical words and phrases not found in general conversation.
