TELEVISION LOG

TORRANCE, CALIFORNIA, SUNDAY, AUGUST 17, 1952

PROGRAM NOTES

Piano virtuoso Carmen Cavallaro and two songsters, Tony Baynar and June Valli, will guest on "Cavalcade of Stars" when it telecasts Sunday at 6 p. m. on Channel 11.

"The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet," which will be seen over the ABC-TV Network, including KECA-TV, starting October 3 stars Ozzie Nelson and his wife, the former Harriet Hilliard, with their two sons, David and Ricky.

Lower Main Street at the Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago, an area never before visited by "Zoo Parade" cameras, will be shown by A. Marchi Perkins, Sunday at 5:30 p. m. on Channel 4. Perkins will introduce a mother-and-son team of "grammars," South American mammals, which they will show in a series of catch-around non-flying birds including the ostrich and emu; several foxes and a kangaroo. Perkins will be assisted by NEC's Jim Hurlbut.

"The Challenge," an adventure of Bulldog Drummond starring Tom Conway will be introduced by host Art Baker on the NBC-TV network Sunday at 7:30 p. m., Channel 11.

When KJLH-TV inaugurates its 1952 coverage of junior college football on Sept. 20, the station will again employ the "Hyster Camera" that met with such favor on the television screen. Directed by KJLH-TV and Hollywood Corp. engineers, the "Hyster Camera" is a device that moves along the sidelines and is set perpendicular to the line of scrimmage. The camera is then lowered or raised to the proper height so as to give maximum coverage to every play.

"Quiz Kids" will return to their desks Monday on Channel 4 at 8 p. m. to match wits with chief quizzer Joe Kelly.

The youngsters are Janet Alford, age 7; Pat Conlon, age 15; Harvey Ditch, age 9; John Carroll, age 11, and Rochelle Leibling, age 12.

Bricks which have shown resistance in their structure against the heaviest earthquakes will be demonstrated and discussed during KTLA's "Magazine of the Week," Sunday, Aug. 17, 10 p. m., Channel 5. On the Animal Page, "birds of prey" in the form of an eagle, a hawk and two different types of owls will be compared in looks and habits. Editor in Chief Gil Martyn will tune in for viewers in California's unusual "Magazine of the Week" program.

CHAWK-CHAWK THE CARTOONIST CLOWN

Amuses the Kids of All Ages

In addition to his clowning talents our clown friend is also an accomplished cartoonist. He gives drawing lessons for the viewers of "Alibi's Tent Show," and his cartoons of animals in action fascinate the children. A former member of the Walt Disney staff, Robbins has done caricatures of many famous people including Red Skelton, Edward G. Robinson, Ed Wynn and Eddie Cantor.

During World War II, Robbins spent over three years in an Army Special Service Division training fellow soldiers in the art of concealing service productions. During a stint as a part time TV announcer in San Diego, Robbins attracted the attention of veteran showman Max Terhune. Terhune was busy looking for a clown to round out his new Los Angeles TV program, "Alibi's Tent Show," and Robbins seemed to fit. When Robbins learned that his new role was to be that of a clown, he accepted immediately and teamed up with Terhune in Los Angeles.

For a fellow who has been clowning only a few short months, Robbins has turned many frowns upside down and he hopes to be doing the same thing for many years to come.

Saul Robbins, the fellow under "Chawk-Chawk" make up, has no fascinating hobbies such as taming lions or raising pet snakes that make him a "copy" dream for a press agent. He does, however, have one trait that endears him to kids of all ages; he loves to make people laugh.

Currently, his vehicle for getting giggles, guffaws, and chuckles is, "Alibi's Tent Show," on KNXT at 5:45 p. m. Chawk-Chawk holds small fry wide-eyed with his zany but always lovable-clown antics on this afternoon kiddie show. It is encouraging to see youngsters in the studio audience being entertained by something other than booming six shooters and blazing ray guns. Chawk-Chawk's fan mail would indicate that wee home viewers also go for his brand of fun. Robbins excites glee in children by the raising of an eyebrow or by turning down a corner of his grease paint exaggerated mouth.

This attitude of entertaining boys and girls without committing murder or some other form of mayhem is also reflected in the Robbins' Glendale household. Chawk-Chawk and his wife Ruth are bringing up their two children, Harold and Barbara without the benefits of a machine guns and "shoot 'em up" comic books.
