

To Give Info On Stanford

Dr. E. Howard Brooks, assistant director of admissions at Stanford University will visit Torrance High School today to talk with junior and senior students, interested in attending the Northern California college. He will answer questions concerning admission requirements, scholarships and other phases of the university. Besides admissions data, Dr. Brooks will be able to tell prospective students of the courses of study open at Stanford and of the opportunities of training for careers, including advanced study in a number of professions. Dr. Brooks will have also information on campus living accommodations, loan funds, the Stanford Honor Code, part-time job opportunities, student government, and other aspects of campus life.
