Take a Minute To Clean Your Windshield--CHP

"Clean windshields help make driving safer."

This comment was made by Commissioner B. R. Caldwell of the California Highway Patrol as storms were predicted throughout much of California.

"Highways are more dangerous in bad weather, lower speeds are required for safety, and it is especially important to keep the windshield clean while traveling."

"When necessary, take that extra 'life-saving' minute to stop the car and wash the mud spray from the windshield. Motorists should also remove fog or frost before starting the car to help insure safe operation," Caldwell said.

"One of the most dangerous factors in driving at this time of year, and one that is often lightly regarded," he emphasized, "is the visibility from the driver's seat. Rain, snow, sleet and fog all reduce visibility, but many drivers can't see through their own car windows."

Accident investigations indicate that almost one out of every four accidents happen while adverse weather conditions prevail. A clean windshield instead of a fogged or muddy one would help to eliminate many of these crashes.

"Keep your windshield washed on the outside and keep the car ventilated on the inside to provide the best possible view of the road; then drive carefully," he said.
