Those three letters can incredse the seriousness of any traffic charge against you, make it practically certain you'll be convicted—and increase the penal-ty. HBD, written on the police blotter, stands for "had be en drinking." And if they're written alongside a traffic charge against you, they mean frouble. It isn't necessary to be drunk while driving. "Had been drinking" is enough — even if you've had only those proverbial "couple of beers."

If you must have alcohol while driving, put it into the car's cooling system, where it's needefor winter protection. The new ear dealer who handles your make of car can recommend the correct anti-freeze, because he knows your car best.

Last year about $20 per cent of all drivers or pedestrians involved in fatal accidents were those who "had been drinking."

For when a driver or passenger is taken to the hospital after an accident, the nepital all too often adds three more letters to the HBD on the police blotter. Those three letters are DOA—dead on arrival.
