

Law In Action Book Available at Herald

"Law In Action," a newspaper feature dealing with the subjects of law and government in language of the layman, has been printed in the Torrance Herald each week for the past several months.

The articles have been prepared by distinguished members of the Bar, with the approval of the local and State Bar associations.

So popular has the feature become with readers that the Torrance Herald has arranged to have the first 26 articles of the series reprinted in booklet form, and these are now available for free distribution at the office of the Herald on a "first come, first served" basis, so long as the limited supply may last.

Several hundred copies of the booklet also have been requested by the Torrance Unified School District for use in classes in social studies and civics.

A second volume of "Law In Action" will be released by the Herald early next summer, following completion in this newspaper of the publication of the second series of weekly articles, now being printed, according to Managing Editor Reid Bundy.

Subjects covered in the current compilation now in process of distribution, include:
A Driver in an Automobile Accident, The Idea of a Contract, The Usefulness of Contracts, Pre-Requisites of a Contract, The Contract is "A Plan of Action," Wills and National Welfare, Community Property, Who May Make a Will, Intestate Succession and Your Will, Women and Wills, Wills and Trusts, Requirements of a Will, Homeowner's Liability, Ball in Criminal Cases, Right to Representation, Conduct of Jurors, Jury Duty, Agency.

Grand Juries and Trial Juries, Equal Justice, Why We Need Judges, Why Write Decisions?, How You Appeal a Case, How Our Law Grows, Open Court, Subpoena, A Tool of Freedom.
