PLANNERS DENY ZONING VARIANCE FOR HOSPITAL

Zoning plans for South Torrance—showing an area between Anza Ave. and Madison St. and 236th and 242nd Sts. as a major commercial zone—were presented at a public hearing before the Torrance Planning Com-at a public hearing before the forfance raining commission Wednesday night.

The Commission received no written objections to this area or to four commercial zones—the Avacado Ranch, the Tolson properties at Crenshaw Blvd. and Pacific Coast Hwy, the triangle between Newton St. nd Pacific Coast Hwy., and around the 3000 block on Newton St.

Objections were received to commercial zoning of the old Walteria School site at 242nd and Ward St.

The request of Paul H. Smith, of Gardena, for a variance and conditional permit to build a 32-bed convalescent hospital on Arlington St., near 174th, was repeted by a 6-2 yote of the commission.

A number of residents of the area had protested the erection of such a structure. Smith had indicated that the hospital would operate only as a nursing home for some time.

The application of Harold D. Rebadow for a variance to build a real estate, insurance, and contractor's office at 1227 Crenshaw Bivd., was referred back to Jance to build a real estate, insurance, and contractor's office at 1227-Crenshaw Blvd., was referred back to committee.

Commissiones are presently considering a restricted and commercial zonning classification for properties located the part residential districts. Under this classification, commercial properties in the area would have to meet specifications laid down to by the commission.

Tried in several other cities, the plan protects excitation which would damage the value of their property. It would cost nothing, but would restrict the type of construction somewhat.

If you do business—any business—in this area, chances are you will benefit from his spending, too!

There are more than 26,000 of these left men and women in this and surrounding areas. And their income is more than 127 million dollars every year right here! Every type of business benefits from these dollars... and the taxes which pay for schools, police, fire departments and other civic enterprises come in large measure from the people of Douglas.

Douglas is proud of these substantial citizens who are helping to build our prosperous community and the kind of aircraft upon which the safety of America depends so much.
