Reflections

By J. HUGH SHERFEY, JR.
JOHN WAS VINDICATED
John Aimes was short stop in a Babe Ruth League. The day was hot and John was thirsty, went to the soft drink stand, ordered a bottle of pop, laid two nickels on the counter. "It's a dime," the clerk barked. "I know it," John replied. "I gave you two nickels," the clerk angrily shook her finger, stormed, "You didn't. You're a cheap cheat, put the bottle back in the ice." John stood there, poked up his nickel. "I gave you two," he insisted, turned, called his captain.

"If John told you he gave you two nickels, believe him," the captain declared. "These boys are honorable." The lady looked on the floor, came up. "I found it. Here's a dime." John shook his head. "I gave you two nickels," she corrected and turned away. The lady emptied one carton, then another one, straightened, smiled. "John, I'm sorry. Here's your nickel."

A boy's character is malleable. Give him the right associates, with positive training and he'll travel the road we indicate. P.S. Honor, above all, is our creed.
