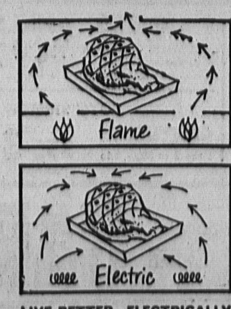
In baking ham, juice is the secret of flavor—but flame evaporates juice



LIVE BETTER—ELECTRICALLY

Here's why:

◊ Flame needs air to breathe. A flame-heated oven constantly inhales dry air, exhales moist air—literally cooks meat in a hot draft that evaporates good juices. Ham, especially, can dry out that way. Because a 12-pound ham takes about 3 hours to cook. In that length of time, a flame oven can really dry up a lot of juice.

◊ But when you cook it electrically, there's no draft of constantly changing air. Because there's no flame. You cook in moist heat, not dry heat. Result? More juice stays in the ham—and it tastes better.

Here are more good reasons for cooking electrically. It's far cleaner. And cooler and safer, too. Actually, electric cooking is the only modern way to cook. See your electrical appliance dealer soon.
