PTA Unit Hears Importance of Tax Proposals

Importance of the tax override and state loan issues to be decided by local voters at a special election on Tuesday was explained to members of the Waleria School PTA at the group's first general meeting of the current school year.
 S. E. Waldrup, assistant superintendent of schools, told the Thursday night gathering that passage of the propositions is necessary to provide adequate school facilities for local youngsters.
 He said that seven new elementary schools that will be put into service this year will "barely make a dent in the double sessions problem."
Won't Use All
 Although the over-ride proposal is for a 75 cent per $100 of assessed evaluation tax increase, Waldrup predicted that the Board of Education probably would levy less than half this amount during the first fiscal period it is in effect.
 He declared that the projected $14,000,000 state loan would not increase taxes.

 for eight cars at the property with a wall around the rear of the property.
 Richard B. Wilson's request for a variance for a real estate office at 4509 Torrance Blvd. received a recommendation from the Planners. The office is in residential property now.

Items Considered

In other action several pieces of land were considered on motion of the Planning Commission:
 1. A first hearing was held on property bounded by Hawthorne, Sepulveda, Carson, and the railroad right-of-way, owned by the Chancellor-Western Oil and Development Co. No protests were received and a second hearing was set for Oct. 10. A change from A-1 to M-2 and C-2 zoning is sought.

2. A first hearing on 9.9 acres at the northeast corner of Madrona and Sepulveda will be held on Oct. 17. Owned by the Del Amo Estate, the land is now zoned M-2, but a change to C-2 is sought.

3. On Oct. 17, a first hearing on land on the west side of Crenshaw from 178th to 181st St. will be held. Planners will consider a change from R-1 and 2 zoning to R-3.

Business Licenses Studied
 Action on business licenses included the following:
 1. The Draple Manufacturing Co. request for a license at 17026 Prairie Ave. was held over until Oct. 17, pending a report from the Fire Department.

2. Pauline Peek's request for a child care center for two youngsters at 4721 Merrill St. was recommended for approval.

3. Requests of Vivian Johnston, 22021 Anza Ave.; Mrs. Billy Barker, 26010 Calmhill Dr., and Geraldine Sisk Kuglis, 2367 W. 237th St., all were sent to committees for investigation.

4. William K. Kaps' request for a license to conduct private investigations at 3151 W. 182nd St. was recommended for approval, if the Police Department OK's the plan.

Elections

 75-cent override tax, needs approval only of a simple majority of the city's electors. It would be used to equip the new schools, since the state loan funds can be used only for actual construction.

It would also be used to provide more money for teachers' salaries, which have fallen somewhat behind neighboring school districts. If the most capable teachers are to be hired, salaries must be near those in neighboring districts, officials said.

Torrance has been one of the last districts in this area to raise its tax ceiling, and at present has the lowest rate of any district in the area.

Costs Rise
 Since state and federal funds are allotted on a fixed basis, an increase in the tax rate is needed to meet the rising costs of operation, officials declared. School population has outstripped assessed valuation in Torrance in recent years. Two years ago the average valuation per student was $8202. This year the average has dropped to $6568.

Leading civic organizations have endorsed the proposal. These include the Torrance Industries Tax Committee, Chamber of Commerce, executive board of the Torrance Woman's Club; Lionesses; Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers; Steelworkers' Union; all local PTAs, and The Torrance HERALD.
