VETERANS' DAY Thirty-eight yests ago shells screamed overhead while mud and cootes were underfoot. Suddenly, all was quiet. An Armistice came. Men hugged one shother, happy smiles bpread over grim faces, that war was over. Today, some of those men have passed to their great reward, others are in hose reward, others are in hose retails while a few are at home contemplating tomor-ow, remembering those ter-tible days of yesterday.
