New Wage Rate Of Steelworkers Starts Monday

Increases in wages and benefits that were provided for in its three-year labor agreement reached with the United Steelworkers of America last summer will take effect beginning tomorrow, United States Steel Corp. announced yesterday.

The increases occurring on July 1 will raise U. S. Steel's employment costs about 6 per cent to an all-time high.

An accompanying increase averaging about 4 per cent in its carbon and alloy steel prices was announced at the same time by United States Steel.

This increase, amounting to approximately three tenths of a cent per pound or $8 per ton, will take effect at 12:01 a.m. Monday, July 1, and will bring the average of U. S. Steel's carbon and alloy steel prices to about 7 3/4 cents per pound.

In announcing the compensation developments, Clifford F. Hood, president of U. S. Steel, said:

"The three-year contract signed with the United Steelworkers of America on Aug. 3, 1956, after a costly 34-day strike, was designed to provide something better than the previous annually renewable labor agreements with that union. Our objective was to obtain a definite period of labor stability to enable us to carry out extensive and costly expansion, modernization, replacement programs we had scheduled; to enable our customers to carry on their business in an orderly fashion, free from the disturbing possibility each year of a shut-down of steel operations; to enable our steelworkers themselves to plan for and carry out their family programs and responsibilities, without fear of loss of employment due to strike at annual contract re-openings, and to retard, if possible, the march of inflation.

21-Cent Increase

"The total increases taking effect will amount to 21 cents per hour, including a cost-of-living adjustment of 4 cents per hour to take effect at the beginning of the first day period on or after July 1. This compares with an increase of 24 cents per hour following the signing of the three-year labor agreement last Aug. 3. Since then, however, there have been other contractual cost increases including a cost-of-living increase of 3 cents per hour, which became effective last January under terms of the agreement.
