Area May Get New Shipbuilding Contracts, Congressman Reports

Congressman Cecil R. King announced yesterday that the U. S. Maritime Commission is seriously considering the award of a major shipbuilding contract to the Los Angeles area. The legislator last week called upon Maritime Administrator Clarence G. Morse to award at least a portion of the new shipbuilding program now being planned for the Moore-McCormack Steamship Lines to the Los Angeles area in an effort to offset the rising unemployment in defense industries.

Commissioner Morse notified King Monday that his request to allocate a portion of the ship construction awards under provisions of Public Law 805 to Southern California is now being reviewed by the Federal Maritime Board.

"In connection with this review," Morse told King, "you may be assured that the critical unemployment situation that you pointed out is being given careful attention by the board in considering the award of contracts for the construction of the Moore-McCormack ships."

The Maritime Commission will shortly announce the shipyards where seven new vessels will be constructed.

Congressman King stated that the award of a shipbuilding contract now to the Los Angeles area would not only help restore the sagging shipbuilding industry here but would make available hundreds of new jobs and tend to offset the effects of the aircraft industry layoffs.

Writers Will Hear Author Ray Bradbury

Southwest Manuscripters will hold their annual Christmas meeting on Friday evening, at 8 p.m. at Clark Stadium, in Hermosa Beach, and also will elect officers.

As a special attraction, Ray Bradbury, well-known writer, will be guest speaker. Bradbury, who usually addresses the group every July, spent last summer in London where he did a film for Carol Reed.

Although Bradbury is renowned for his science-fiction and fantasy, he has branched out in other fields. He did the screen version of Melville's classic, Moby Dick. Many of his short stories are now being done on Television. And his new novel, "Dandelion Wine" is being hailed as "extraordinary and imaginative."

Members are reminded to bring their books, gift-wrapped and with poem attached, for the Christmas book exchange.

Also, all manuscripts for the Christmas contest must be in at the December meeting.

At this meeting, election of officers for the coming year will be held, when the selection made by the nominating committee is made public.

The Southwest Manuscripters meet every third Friday of the month. Both established and beginning writers are welcome to attend meetings and join in the social coffee hour which follows.
