

MECHANICAL ATTENDANT . . . The Bank of America in downtown Torrance has installed a token-operated gate in their parking lot in back of their location at 1255 Sartori. An automatic gate admits customers to the lot who are given a token after banking transactions, which when deposited in a slot at the exit raises the gate there. Harold Frenz, branch manager; Bruce Jones, assistant manager; Ed Taylor, operations officer for Card Key System; and Dean Sears, assistant vice president, watch the procedure. A 50 per cent greater parking turnover is claimed for the system and after-banking hour parking is available for area shoppers without tokens. (Herald photo)

NO WOOD USED

The capital city of Bermuda has no wooden structures. All houses built here must be of stone, presumably as a fire safety measure.
