The Guests Might Snicker!

Dear Ann: My neighbors say I'm crazy. Please settle this so I can show them your answer.

I'm a woman 57 who looks younger. I'm going to be married for the fourth time. I want a large wedding and reception. I plan to wear a long white chiffon gown and have five attendants. In fact, I want the whole works.

The neighbors say a wedding of this type is for someone who has never been married. Well, this is the first marriage for my fiancé and he should have the thrill of seeing his bride come down the aisle in a white gown and veil. My previous history has nothing to do with him.

To hear the neighbors talk you'd think I was out of my mind. How about it?

—Here Comes the Bride

A 57-year-old veteran of three marriage campaigns shouldn't be surprised if she hears some snickering between the bars of "Oh Promise Me."

White is a symbol of purity. Now, HEALY, Lady!

Of course there's no law to prevent you from wearing the traditional bridal gown and veil if you wish but you'll make a fool of yourself and a farce of the ceremonies.

Dear Ann: I have an unusual mother-in-law problem. Maybe you can help. My husband's mother lives with us. She's a widow, well-fixed financially, cheerful and pleasant. We get along well.

My mother-in-law has helped us out a lot financially. She pays for all the groceries, utilities and numerous household items.

The problem is this: She insists on using her old-fashioned, hand-crocheted doilies on the living room chair and tables. We have two marble-top tables and she even has doilies on those. She also has a pair of chenille-looking China Biscuits on the wall. I don't know when my guests notice them.

I wouldn't hurt her feelings for the world, but more than once I've felt like ripping up those doilies and throwing out the wall brackets. Any suggestions?—Fidd

Wayfarer's Chapel Scene For Exchange of Vows

Wayfarer's Chapel was the setting for the nuptial exchange of Sue Epperheimer and Victor Martinov June 24, 6 p.m. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Epperheimer, 26428 Athena Ave., Harbor City; M. C. Martinov, 200 Palos Verdes Dr., Rolling Hills, is the father of the bride.

The bride was radiant in a gown of white nylon lace with a fitted bodice over taffeta and long pointed sleeves. The waist-length gown had a mandarin collar and she wore a short veil. Her bouquet was fashioned into a fan centered by a large white orchid with baby orchids surrounding it.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Iris Limes, the bride's sister. Her gown was pale aqua embroidered nylon over satin with a satin sash and head piece. She carried a cascade of aqua and white carnations.

Serving as best man was Phil Ward while Norman and Adrian Martinov ushered guests to their seats. Kathy Epperheimer, sister of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

The Rev. Kenneth Knox officiated at the ceremony and a reception was held later at the bride's parents' home.

Both the newlyweds were graduated from Narbonne High School and will make their home in Torrance.
