Research of State's Legislative Counsel Plays an Important Role

The present Legislative Counsel is Mr. Ralph N. Kieps, whose office is on the third floor of the Capitol Annex near both the Assembly and the Senate Chambers. He is assisted by a fairly large staff of men and women lawyers, clerks, secretaries, typists and messengers, all of whom are selected without regard to political affiliation and are required to stay clear of partisan disputes.

The Legislative Counsel is selected by concurrent resolution at the beginning of each regular session of the Legislature, and serves until his successor has been selected and qualified. If I remember correctly, his annual salary is $17,000 and I believe he is worth it. Neither the Legislative Counsel nor any employee of his staff is permitted to oppose or urge legislation, hence the function of the office is primarily research leading to the drafting of bills introduced by legislators. Practically all bills, resolutions, and amendments are prepared by the Legislative Counsel, even when the author of the bill is himself a lawyer.

For instance, Legislative Counsel and any other employee of the staff is permitted to reveal to any outside person the contents or nature of any matter which has not become a public record, except with the consent of the person bringing the matter before the Legislative Counsel. For example, if I hear that some Assemblyman or Senator is having a bill prepared and want to discuss it with the Legislative Counsel or one of his deputies, I must obtain the written consent of the author of the bill.

One of the duties of the Legislative Counsel is to provide legal assistance for committees, both during sessions of the Legislature and when interim committees are holding hearings. For example, during the long years that I worked with the South Bay cities on beach pollution, one of the senior deputies was present at each committee meeting and played a quiet but very effective role in helping us to obtain the passage of two anti-pollution laws.

One of the little known duties of the Legislative Counsel is to contract, at not less than cost and subject to regulations approved by the Director of Finance, with any county or city for the codification, compilation, or indexing of any or all of its ordinance or resolutions.

The Legislative Counsel also gives legislators written opinions regarding State law. For example, some citizen may write to me that he had consulted a lawyer who told him that the State law on a certain subject imposes duties on that citizen. Mr. constituent thinks his lawyer is wrong and writes to me about it. I send the letter to the Legislative Counsel for comment and return. Since it requires considerable research, I may not get an answer for two or three weeks. Also, it may not be the answer my constituent wants to get, but it is an impartial answer, and it represents the opinion of the State's highest legal authority.

This does not mean that the Legislative Counsel is running competition with local lawyers. If you do not have money to pay a lawyer, write to the Legal Aid Foundation of Los Angeles, 106 West 3rd St., Los Angeles. If you think you have been tricked in a business deal or suspect that you are about to be tricked, write to the Better Business Bureau of Los Angeles, 724 South Spring St., Los Angeles. Another source of sound advice is the manager of your local Chamber of Commerce.
