Mrs. Metzger Jones, 2039 Paeon del Sol, Palos Verdes Estates, has resigned as president of the League of Women Voters of Palos Verdes Estates in order to devote more time to her new job as chairman of the county council of the league.

Her activities in date have included: chairman of the national study item on Individual Liberties, editor of the Bulletin since March, 1952; and the organization and carrying out of the recent Palos Verdes school survey.

PROTEIN FOODS

Most retail meat prices are showing little change. You'll still find "specials" offered on various items at the meat counters. On a cost-per-serving basis, ground beef, variety meats and poultry will give you most for your money. The homemakers' budget savers are chickens and turkeys. They are better than ever—and low as ever in price.

This is a good time to acquaint your family with convenient and popular canned meats. Canned meats have become staple items on American pantry shelves. The amount of these meats we eat has increased from 3 to 11 pounds per person in the past 20 years.

MEATS. Read the labels. Minimum standards have been set up for many meat products. For example, chili con carne must contain at least 40% meat, hash at least 35%, and lamb or beef stew 25%. Food and Drug Administration requires that all canned meats shipped interstate must have the ingredients named on the label in order of their predominance. Compare brands. Think of your family's tastes as you read the labels.

EGGS. The egg market is "strong" but no drastic changes in supply and price are anticipated. Eggs are still a protein bargain.

BEST BUYS FOR THE WEEK

In Torrance Markets

ON THE PRODUCE STANDS

Your market's produce department looks like a huge salad bowl. Two favorite salad greens (lettuce and Romaine) are especially abundant and of top quality. Tomatoes have picked up both in supply and quality and at the same time have dropped in price at wholesale. Some of the finest producing districts are sending tomatoes to market now. Lots of vitamin-rich bell peppers to accent that tossed salad.

The most plentiful fruits in market are California Gravenstein apples, cantaloupes and watermelons. Gravensteins are one of the best apples in the world for pies. Get busy—treat your family to a juicy, juicy apple pie. The Gravenstein season, unfortunately, is very short.

We'll have plenty of peaches through the rest of the season. In fact, this is the largest crop in 11 years. Not so with plums and apricots—they are short. This is the smallest apricot crop since 1943. Don't expect them to be abundant nor to drop much in price.

Harvest of the large nectarine crop continues. Weather conditions slowed the maturity making shipments fall behind those of last year. Volume will pick up as season continues.

Summer Camp Enjoyed by Local Girls

This summer will be a long remembered one for many YWCA teens who are attending YWCA Camp Tahquitz Meadows.

Memories of typical camp programs of hiking along nature trails, cook-outs, horse-back riding, crafts, games of volleyball, tennis, and baseball, archery practice, swimming, campfires, and worship will remain long after summer is gone.

To some this has been a first time away from home. To others who must help take care of large families while the mother works, this has been a rare chance for recreation.

For all it has been an opportunity to meet and know girls from other towns, girls with different backgrounds from their own. It has been an experience of working, playing and living together.

Girls who are attending camp this period and the names are: Loneta Lynn, Dorothy Carter, Bonnie Davis, Barbara Dolan, Ernestine Estrada, Dian Haason, Leslie Hecht, Janet Herrmann, Carolyn Huntoon, Mary Rounds, Donna Scholes, Margaret Stone, Virginia Strickland, Leila Timmons, Kathy Wiley, and Judy Wixon.
