

REHEARSE SHOW... A pause in rehearsal is taken by members of the El Camino College community orchestra as Director Colvin Green of Torrance points out a musical highlight. The orchestra will accompany Friday and Sunday evening performances of "Elijah" at the college. The public is invited to attend the performance without charge.

El Camino Chorus to Present 'Elijah' Friday and Sunday

El Camino College will round out the busiest summer theater season in its history this week-end as a 50-voice chorus presents the oratorio, "Elijah" in the Campus Theater.

Free to the public, performances will be conducted at 8:30 p.m. on Friday and Sunday evenings under the direction of R. Neil Hill, director of El Camino College choral groups.

The full-length oratorio, the first to be presented in the 11-year history of the college, follows a series of four dramatic performances which concluded last week-end with the presentation of Thornton Wilder's "Skin of Our Teeth."

Accompaniment will be provided by the college community orchestra under the baton of Calvin Greer, who will conduct Part I of the oratorio and Hill, who will conduct the final section of the work.

Mendelssohn's oratorio is commonly ranked with the "Messiah" by Handel and Haydn's "Creation" as one of the three greatest oratorios ever written. The college choral director describes it as "the most dramatically exciting of all, demanding keen talent and skill from its performers."

Dr. Barry, also, Fred Lincoln and Roberto Figueroa, tenors; and Sherwood Terman and Charles Bartholomew, basses.

PARTICIPATING IN the presentation of the Mendelssohn work will be representatives of a number of church choral groups throughout the Composed entirely of polishing and protective ingredients, the waxes are the best natural furniture preservative available, it was reported.

SOLOISTS FOR the work are products of the El Camino College music department, each one having completed or currently in the process of completing a full course of study.

Soprano are Stella Herman, singing the role of the widow, and Winifred Newborn, representing the Angel. Also solos will be sung by Marjorie Gibson, who recently appeared in the role of the Countess in the college production of "Song of Norway."

TENOR ARIAS will be sung by Eugene Holder, a graduate of El Camino College who is currently singing with Roger Wagner Chorale and the Greg Smith Singers. The baritone role of "Elijah" will be handled by Bruce Steiner, who is another recent performer in the college production of Grieg's "Song of Norway."

Other leading roles will be sung by Virginia Babut and Shirley Barnes, sopranos; Or-
