WHAT'S DOING

R. S. Pyle, your Telephone Manager in Torrance

Over the years you've come to expect your phone calls to go through swiftly and smoothly. To keep your service dependable, we make sure our equipment's working well all along the line. And we've developed lots of ways to head off trouble before it starts. For instance, in the maintenance center above, a special line tester checks thousands of lines in just one hour. It lets us know if anything needs fixing. And this is just one of many testers, alarms and trouble-spotters that our people use. In town and out in the country, we guard your service at all times with watchful eyes.

A various glass cylinder will be an important part of tomorrow's telephone service. It's a memory tube. For a limited time, the memory tube remembers what fifty people dial into it. Your telephone system of tomorrow also will have tiny photo plates, each able to remember 50,000 bits of information. And there'll be electronic switches that will make connections a thousand times faster than today's switches. Scientists and engineers at Bell Laboratories are experimenting with these and many other electronic devices. Eventually they'll make it possible for customer phone service to be designed to meet almost every individual need. For instance, suppose you call your Aunt Sue back East quite often. Your phone could be fixed so you would dial a single number such as 5-1234. The tubes and plates and switches would take over—knowing you want Aunt Sue. The machine would search thru your call across the nation, find Aunt Sue's number and ring it—all in an instant. And you'd have the first "electronic" telephone building in Torrance. It'll be ready for testing. Telephone engineers say it will be the beginning of better, faster and more useful telephoning than ever before.
