Strike

The client does not explain why he missed the payment because of a strike until four weeks after the payment was due.

Finance companies reported no new business from truckers and said that none of their clients among the truckers had called to say they couldn't meet their payments because of a strike.

"Of course, that is one of the sad parts about the finance business," one manager said.

One hardware merchant is chortling. His buyer ordered all items for delivery last week and then took a two week vacation.

Wholesale salesmen calling on local merchants differ widely on their stories of what they hear the effects of the strike are elsewhere.
