most every day he brings me a sack of peanuts when he returns from lunch. Does this mean anything? How can I get him to ask for a date without being too brazen? —The Blonde.

I knew a fellow who used to buy peanuts for the monkeys in the zoo almost every day but as far as I know he never asked any of them out.

Apparently the lad is a slow starter. Often what is needed to get this type off dead center is a gentle shove. Invite him to the theater, a concert, anything that makes sense. Tell him you happen to have two tickets. (This is easy—you buy two instead of one.) If, after the initial date he doesn't issue an invitation on his own, write him off.

Dear Ann: I've read a great general of the Society of Mary. They both will speak on education. The public is invited according to Mrs. Donald Guise, program chairman.

deal in your column about women who were both neat and sloppy in the extreme. My problem is my husband. He's such a stickler for detail that it's maddening. I've seen him take cuticle scissors and even up the fringe on the rug. He's constantly straightening pictures, window shades and furniture. He checks the doors four and five times a night, also the gas jets. What can I do about a man as meticulous as this? —VERA.

This is more than "meticulous"—this is sick. Your husband should see a doctor. The compulsion to check and recheck and go overboard on straightening things is a manifestation of other troubles. His neurotic behavior could spill over into other areas. He needs help.

If alcohol is bothering you or someone you love of health and dignity, read "Help For the Alcoholic" — a booklet with your request 30 cents in coin and a self-addressed envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problem. Send them to her in care of this newspaper and enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope. (C) 1951, Field Enterprises, Inc.
