Cyclist Injured In Port Crash

Orville R. Balcom, 21, assistant circulation manager for The HERALD, has been released from the hospital after suffering painful injuries, including cuts, bruises, and a broken elbow in an accident in San Pedro Friday evening.

Balcom, who lives at 26001 Eschman Ave., Lomita, was injured when his motorcycle and an auto driven by Daniel Wood, 27, of San Pedro, collided at North St. and Averill Ave., police said.

Investigating officers said Wood was apparently blinded by the sun and did not see the cyclist approaching. Wood made a left turn in front of Balcom, the report shows.

Balcom was taken to San Pedro receiving hospital and then transferred to Torrance Memorial Hospital.

He expects to return to his desk at The HERALD next week.

Parents Return To School For North High Fete

Parents of North High School students will report for Back-to-School Night Tuesday, Oct. 7 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in the school gymnasium.

During the combined open-school night—PTA meeting, the North High School Band will make its first public appearance in uniform.

Topics to be discussed at the meeting include: reporting to parents, college and vocational counseling, and the coming school bond election. Student insurance will also be discussed.

Parents will meet all of their youngsters' teachers during an accelerated schedule of their child's scholaday.

Crain Returns From S.F. Meet

John Crain, 3753 W. 171 St., will return home from San Francisco this week end after attending the 35th annual convention of the Associated Traffic Clubs of America, which met in that city Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, of this week.

Crain was a member of a 100-man delegation representing eight traffic clubs of the greater Los Angeles area. Heading the local delegation was C. Roy Manska, director of the ATC and the Los Angeles Transportation Club.

More than 1500 men and women from the United States, Canada, and Mexico attended the convention.

Commercial Art Classes Still Open

Enrollments are still being taken in the evening adult commercial art class at Torrance High School. The class meets on Thursdays from 7-10 p.m. in room 123. Instruction in the 12-week course is designed to aid employes in small business to prepare their own advertising and display signs and posters.

It includes lettering, layout, commercial design and the production of posters and window signs. Merchants are invited to send representative employes to the class. Students are free to produce materials which will be of practical use to the business.

There are openings in many other adult classes at Torrance, North, and South High Schools. Persons interested in academic learning, using the slide rule, speaking in public, psychology of everyday living, child psychology, security investments, or in developing skills in shorthand, typing, or machine shop should contact the Adult Education Office.
